Red Fortress of Kronstadt Reported Silent

Leningrad Sea Approach Blown Up by Bombing Attack of Nazis

Russian Batteries Silent, Finnish Report Says; Germans Claim Capture of Key City

HELSINKA, Sept. 18 (AP)—Finnish army correspondents reported today that the Soviet island fortress of Kronstadt which guards the sea approach to Leningrad had been silenced.

An army dispatch said that after ceaseless day and night bombardment by the Germans the fort suddenly went dead and has not fired a shot for several days.

Thick smoke was said to have enveloped the Russian batteries after tremendous blasting by many Stukas.

The Finns were able to see that the great cathedral and many factory chimneys on Kotlin Island where Kronstadt is situated, were still standing, the dispatch said. Kronstadt is only fifteen miles from the Finnish shore.

Dispatches from the front said that ship traffic between Leningrad and Kronstadt had been "extremely lively" recently and that a large fleet of Red warships was on constant patrol in waters near Leningrad itself.

A number of Red naval sallies against Finnish coast positions were said to have been repulsed by alert shore batteries.

Germans Claim Capture Of Armament Industries

BERLIN, Sept. 18 — Germans claimed tonight the capture of a key city of the Soviet armament industry in a drive so swift that the Russians had no chance to dynamite the water and electric plants as they had arranged to do.

Identity and location of the city, said to be of 30,000 population, were not disclosed in the account by DNB, official German news agency, but the high command reported that in the Ukraine "offensive operations east of the Dnieper are progressing irresistibly." That region is highly industrialized.

Elsewhere, authorized German sources said sharp Russian counter-attacks directed at an occupied town on the central front were repulsed, while the high command claimed "great success" in fighting around the fortifications of besieged Leningrad.

Take Many Prisoners

The central sector counter-attacks collapsed when the Russians suffered "bloody losses" and the Germans took hundreds of prisoners, eighteen tanks and four cannon, DNB declared.

The high command's only detail concerning Leningrad credited sections of a single infantry division with storming 119 Russian pillboxes. German source, however, described both Nazi and Finnish forces as fighting tediously forward through

Bulgaria Mobilizing for Possible Aid of Nazis in Drive for Suez

Three German Divisions Believed Preparing for Military Movement in Mediterranean Area

ANKARA, Turkey, Sept. 17 (Delayed) — Balkan informants reported tonight that Bulgaria had mobilized 350,000 men in a continuing call to the colors and that German road building experts were feverishly constructing highways in south and southeastern Bulgaria which would be useful for any land-sea action directed toward Suez.

Three German divisions and other Nazi units also are in Bulgaria, these persons reported — in addition to an organization which is building military roads under high pressure.

In old Yugoslavia, the same informants said, 600 German engineers are directing thousands of Serb laborers in repairing the Belgrade-Nis and Salonika-Sofia railroads, essential to eastern Mediterranean military movements. The former was destroyed by the Serbs.

British Getting Ready

On the other hand, a diplomatic observer just arrived from Syria said the British were moving artillery and other military units northward toward the Turkish frontier in a steady stream.

A reported Axis attempt to get Italian warships into the Black Sea via the Dardanelles by "selling" them to Bulgaria appeared doomed to failure, if, indeed, the attempt was seriously made.

Today the Turks informed the British that Bulgaria had made no proposal for transit through the straits of any Italian destroyers and submarines. It had been reported that the Axis was planning such a maneuver in order to strengthen its forces in the Black Sea, where Russian sea power is predominant.

Turks Will Refuse

In any event, a well-informed source said, the Turks would refuse flatly to permit the passage of any warships through the Dardanelles unless they were owned by "real neutrals."

Presumably this would exclude Bulgaria, which is technically not at war with any of the present belligerents.

Russia recently accused Bulgaria of cooperating in German plans for an attack on the U. S. S. R. by way of Bulgarian soil, and there have been persistent reports of the assemblage for aggressive purposes of 100 to 200 small ships in the Bulgarian Black Sea ports of Burgas and Varna.

Writers' Project Director Charges Reds Rule Group

Roy Lee Harmon Also Says "WPA Is Rotten to the Core"

HUNTINGTON, W. Va., Sept. 18 (AP)—Roy Lee Harmon, federal Writers' Project director, declared today that the state project is "full of Communists," and "the WPA is rotten to the core," and was promptly directed to appear at WPA headquarters here for an explanation of his charges.

"That was a mighty broad statement," said State Administration J. N. Alderson, of the WPA, "One that will need quite a lot of explaining."

Alderson said Harmon was instructed to appear at the administrator's office tomorrow, "whenever he arrives from Bluefield," where he made the statement.

The administrator, obviously surprised when informed of the assertions Harmon had made in the Mercer county city, declined any comment on possible disciplinary action, or on whether there would be a search for Reds in the writers project.

Lack of Trucks Slows War Games, Gen. Reckord Says

Striking Force of Blues Impeded by Poor Transportation

By FRANCIS P. FLEMING

A. P. HILL MILITARY RESERVATION, Va., Sept. 18. (AP)—Transportation difficulties arising during the Twenty-Ninth division's mock war exercise gave added emphasis to the division's continued demands for more trucks, Major-General Milton A. Reckord, commanding officer, said tonight.

"The striking force of the Blue's invasion of Red territory was lessened materially," he said, "when tactics directors were forced to employ slow, shuttle movements in carrying troops fifty miles to the attack sectors. The problem called for an initial, hard-hitting impact by the entire force at once. But as it developed, not all of the 12,000 men were in attack positions at the zero hour. Many were still moving to the front."

Lack Patrol Cars

General Reckord also asserted that effective troop movement was impeded by an inadequate number of radio patrol cars, which are used chiefly to ascertain enemy positions.

His sole criticism of officers and men during the three-day maneuver was that reconnoitering patrols did not function aggressively and messages from scouting patrols were not relayed to headquarters in the rear with sufficient speed. Shortage of

Huge Shipments Of U. S. Goods Reach England

Tons of Supplies Arriving at British Port Every Week

BY EDDY GILMORE

A BRITISH PORT, Sept 18 (AP)—A convoy disgorged today on the docks of this port a truly all-American cargo of everything from California warplanes to Georgia peanuts—part of 850,000 tons of supplies which, officials say, is arriving every week in England.

To a Selma, Ala., boy watching it unload it was like old home week.

"Hey you guys!" sang out Arch Masterson of Hollywood boulevard, Hollywood, superintendent of plane unloading. "Watch that plane!"

The plane was a grease-smeared Douglas attack bomber from Santa Monica, Calif., which the British call a "Boston." At least a dozen others were coming off the ship.

"I have been here for three years unloading these babies," said Masterson. "They are beginning to roll now."

Unloads Two An Hour

Masterson said the RAF gets the planes into the air three days after he unloads them. He can unload two an hour, he said. They already have undergone test flights.

At the next wharf sweating workers were tackling food, wide-eyed and smacking their lips at what passed through their hands.

The first lot consisted of big sacks of beans from Hansen, Idaho.

"Lot o' soup there, mate," grinned a grimy docker.

There was a rumble as men rolled off tubs from Chicago stamped "Wisconsin Brand" cheese.

Another ship, its decks packed high, showed full bright brown cartons bearing the label "seedless raisins from Fresno, Calif."

At the edge of the docks lay a broken bag of Georgia peanuts. I picked one up and got ready to flip it into my mouth.

"Wait!" warned Col. J. J. LLewelly, parliamentary secretary to the ministry of war transport, "the penalty for looting is death."

Fruit from Florida

An electric-driven truck whizzed by packed high with another kind of carton—"citrus fruit from Lake Wales, Fla."

Atop a big pile of boxes a wall-eyed docker rubbed his stomach and smiled. He sat on white pine boxes marked "skinned hams, Chicago."

Behind a pile of more beans stood a green, United States-made ambulance. "Gift from the people of Milford, Conn."

Grunting dockers were handling bigger boxes at another wharf bearing the stamp "machine tools, Michigan City, Ind."

Big white boxes with blue designs said "aircraft parts, New Haven, Conn."

At still another place whistling workers lugged fire extinguishers from Brooklyn and dried apples from San Francisco.

Then was encountered the biggest pile of all: "Lard from St. Louis" and "canned pork, Chicago."

A whirlwind tour disclosed boxes of fiber from Wilmington, Del., insulation material from Trenton, N. J. and tank tracks from Chicago.

The ministry of war transport said that Lease-Lend cargoes and other imports had been landed at the 850,000 tons weekly rate for the last ten weeks. The ministry said there had been a big speedup due to a quicker "turn-around" of ships.

Legion Elects Lynn Stambaugh New Commander

North Dakota Man Wins Easy Victory; Pledges Aid to FDR

By D. L. Brannon

MILWAUKEE, Sept. 18. (AP)—The American Legion today elected Lynn U. Stambaugh, of Fargo, N. D., national commander in the closing session of its twenty-third national convention, in which the delegates took a strong stand for national defense and the president's foreign policies.

Stambaugh, 51-year-old lawyer who entered the army as a private in the Three Hundred Thirty-eighth field artillery in the World war and was commissioned a second lieutenant while serving overseas, succeeded Milo J. Warner of Toledo, Ohio.

He was elected in a three-cornered race with Edward N. Scheiberling of Albany, N. Y., and Raymond Rields of Guthrie, Okla. He so outdistanced the field that his victory was assured before the roll call was completed, so at the request of his opponents, the count was halted and Stambaugh's election was declared unanimous.

New Commander Takes Office

"You have proclaimed that in the greatest needs during the months to come you do not propose to falter, that your purpose is to carry on to the end your America and all that it means shall be secure," Stambaugh told the convention in taking office.

"It is your will, Legionnaires, that in the crisis which confronts America, the American Legion shall take its place in the battle lines forming.

"I have your orders and I take my call."

Delegates reiterated the organization's previously stated opposition to Communism, Fascism and Nazism.

Would Repeal Neutrality

Defense highlighted the convention. The delegates pledged support to the United States government, President Roosevelt, and the War and Navy departments. They called for repeal of the American neutrality act and abilition of the restrictions on use of American troops outside of the country's boundaries. They stated the defeat of Adolf Hitler "and all that he stands for" was of prime importance and that "all diverting controversies should be subordinated to the main objective." They asked for national unity in carrying forward the defense program.

But today they refused to go on record as recommending legislation for conscription of capital, labor, industry and property as well as fighting manpower during time of national emergency or war.

Such a program would set up a Fascist form of government, one delegate said in objecting to the proposition.

The Legion will meet next year in New Orleans. Mrs. Mark W. Murrill, of Scituate, Mass., was elected national president of the American Legion Auxiliary.

London Source Warns Russia Must Have Flood of War Supplies Soon

Niagara of British and American Material Declared Necessary To Continue Struggle

LONDON, Sept. 18 (AP) — An ominous warning that Russia must have a swift flood-tide of war supplies or face military disaster and, perhaps, capitulation, came tonight from a London source in a position to speak with authority.

With the Crimea apparently cut off by Germany's Ukrainian advance and the Red army's losses in men and tanks described as astronomical, this informant said a Niagara of British and American material is essential to continuation of Russian resistance.

He went so far as to predict that Adolf Hitler would offer the Russians a separate peace and that the Russians—failing to get equipment—might be forced to lay down their arms.

Russia May Surrender

"The whole history of the world turns on the outcome of this battle," said this source. "We will fight on even if Russia is beaten, but our task then will become much harder."

Now, he asserted, the battle is "swaying either way"—toward Russian disaster or success.

He cited figures to the end of August as showing the Russians had lost 3,000,000 men and the Germans, 2,000,000. Moreover, he hinted that Red army losses in tanks constituted one of Russia's most serious blows, and he disclosed that the Germans were repairing captured tanks and using them in their offensive.

The British, the informant continued, have opened an effective railway and highway route to Russia through Iran, and this can be turned into a supply artery for the Russians, once the supplies are forthcoming.

Takes Gloomy View

These expressions of authoritative opinion coincided with the gloomiest of surveys of the Russian military position in the south.

Isolation of Crimea, now regarded here as a fact, means the loss to the Russians of service on Crimea's only railway across the Perekop isthmus. Thus, it was explained, Crimea cannot easily be reinforced when the Germans bring to bear the full force of their attack.

This, the London sources expected, would come soon in a land-air-sea offensive to seize not only Crimea but the industrial Donets basin. They considered the present threat to Crimea to be more grave than that to Leningrad, on the north, because "every vantage point to Leningrad has to be won by extremely hard fighting through a very heavily fortified area."

No such fortifications protect Crimea, on which the Germans are reported advancing on a broad front.

Ickes Refuses To Lift Curfew On Gas in East

Action Would Be 'Stupid', He Says of Senate Request

WASHINGTON, Sept. 18 (AP)—Declining to heed the recommendation of a Senate committee that gasoline restrictions in the east be lifted, Secretary of Interior Ickes, the defense petroleum coordinator, declared today such action would be "stupid."

He told newspapermen the rationing of motor fuel to service stations and the 7 p. m.-7 a. m. station curfew would continue.

"To take off all the restrictions now, and yell 'come and get it,'" he said, "—that would be stupid."

Ickes States Position

Ickes, just back from a month's vacation in the west, stated the position of the petroleum office at his first press conference here since the committee, headed by Senator Maloney (D-Conn), reported there was no petroleum shortage in the east, that "unnecessary alarm was created," and that "we believe that present restrictions should be lifted."

The committee said the only shortage it found was one of surplus storage.

Ickes said he had no comment on the committee's conclusions except

53 Others To Be Seized if Strike Doesn't End Soon, Officials Assert

Seafarers' International Union Threatens To Tie Up Hundreds of Ships Needed for Defense

NEW YORK, Sept. 18 (AP)—The Seafarers International Union (AFL), whose refusal to submit to arbitration its war-bonus dispute with the Alcoa Steamship Company, resulted today in seizure of three Alcoa ships by the federal government, announced tonight it was willing to allow arbitration "on certain conditions."

NEW YORK, Sept. 18 (AP)—The United States Maritime Commission today took the unprecedented action of requisitioning three ships strikebound by a labor dispute—a move which the Seafarers' International Union (AFL) had threatened would precipitate a general shipping strike.

Six hours after the union rejected a government ultimatum to arbitrate its war bonus demands, Captain Granville Conway, manager of the North Atlantic district of the Maritime Commission, posted notice at Weehawken, N. J., that the commission had requisitioned the Alcoa Trader and Alcoa Scout and one other ship of the Alcoao Steamship Company.

Two of the ships were loaded with supplies for an American offshore base.

Conway said he did not know when the ships would sail, but added, "I hope it will be soon."

The government could operate the ships with government crews if the union refused to supply the men. The commission could draw officers and seamen from the government's training schools and army and navy transport services, maritime sources said.

First Action of Kind

Conway said requisitioning of the vessels marked the first time such action had been taken by the commission as a result of a maritime labor dispute.

The union was not immediately available for a statement on the government's action, but Harmon Lewis, president of the Alcoa lines, said he though it a "reasonable move inasmuch as the commission made every effort to make a settlement before taking this action."

Lewis said he believed the requisitioning to be the forerunner of seizure of fifty-five ships owned or operated by Alcoa.

The government acted after Rear Admiral Emory S. Land, commission chairman, delivered an ultimatum directing that the war bonus dispute be submitted to arbitration by noon (EST) today. The union rejected the ultimatum after a morning conference with Alcoa officials.

Conway indicated further action might be expected with regard to eleven other ships tied up by the strike, which began Saturday.

Three Vessels Needed

The government was understood to consider the three vessels to be vital to the movement of Lease-Lend supplies to American bases along the Atlantic.

Aurora Borealis Puts on a Show Some Believe Is Defense Project

Northern Lights Attract Widespread Attention in Many States

NEW YORK, Sept. 18. (AP) — A spectacular display of the Aurora Borealis swept the northwestern skies tonight in a heavenly show which led many an individual to believe it had something to do with national defense.

Is the army testing a new searchlight" or "is the air force practicing a new type of night tactics?" were samples of some of the thousands of phone calls which swamped newspaper offices.

The Hayden planetarium in New York answered calls at the rate of more than a 100 an hour; city dwellers mounted to roof tops while the people who dealt in communications just moaned.

For the capricious flickerings in the firmament played hob with wireless and cable connections practically around the globe and disrupted radio and telegraph service throughout much of the United States.

News Reports Garbled

Teletypewriters in newspaper offices showed a disconcerting volume of garbled copy which looked something like this—XHRPNSYPWM.

Spasmodically, the 300,000-mile leased wire network of the Associated Press was down—at one time for as long as two minutes—and the 10,000-mile wirephoto network over which newspictures are transmitted was upset.

Major communications systems reported the magnetic storm—for such is the term scientists use to describe the apparent cause of the Aurora Borealis (Northern Lights)—struck wireless communication to and from Europe, the far east and Latin America.

Telegraph companies said their services were affected seriously in an area north of the Ohio river

Roosevelt's Request for Gigantic Sum Expected To Be Granted Soon

Part of Money Expected To Be Used for New Type of Ship

By RICHARD L. TURNER

WASHINGTON, Sept. 18. (AP)—Congressional leaders tonight predicted prompt action on a new presidential request for Lend-Lease money, calling for an additional $5,985,000,000 to buy war equipment for Great Britain, China and other nations.

At the same time, a new element entered into the principal problem of the Lend-Lease program—that of delivering the supplies despite the German U-boat campaign. The navy announced the development of a new type of ship which it said might answer the challenge of Hitler's sea war.

The new vessels are small — carrying 1,500 tons of cargo—driven by a combination of several gasoline engines, with a huge propeller deep in the water amidships. They can be built in two months time, it was said, so speedily that they promise to offset, or more than offset, losses at sea.

More Funds Needed

President Roosevelt asked for the new Lend-Lease money, which

Wicomico County Commissioners Placed on Trial; Clerk Is Guilty

Mrs. Rachel Day Admits Embezzlement of $2,000 County Funds

SALISBURY, Md., Sept. 18 (AP)—Five members of the Wicomico county board of commissioners denied today charges of misfeasance of office as they went on trial in Circuit Court, a short time after their former clerk, Mrs. Rachel Wright Day, pleaded guilty to embezzlement of approximately $2,000 in county funds.

The court withheld sentence of Mrs. Day pending the trial of county commissioners. Pleas of innocent were entered by attorneys for all five.

A short time before, Mrs. Day was borne into court on a stretcher from Peninsula General Hospital where she has been a patient and has been under guard since her indictment by the grand jury.

She made no statement at the hearing and her attorney Curtis W. Long, begged the mercy of the court. He said he had no knowledge of the "enormous and fabulous amounts" the state alleges she took from county funds, but said he would not contend the amounts.

The state's attorney, Rex. A. Taylor, told the court that "up until this time there appears to have been $75,000 gone out on similar papers as are under consideration now."

He said that an investigation showed Mrs. Day made bank deposits of $52,000 since 1935 and "we have not been able to say" what has been done with the difference.

Indicted On 85 Counts

Mrs. Day was indicted on eighty-five counts covering stealing, false pretenses, forgery and misappropriation of funds. Taylor said the state would not press the remaining fifty-five counts.

The five county commissioners—

Russia Raising World's Record Military Force

Will Have Army of At Least 25,000,000 Men, Moscow Says

MOSCOW, Sept. 18. (AP)—The Soviet Union began assembling its almost illimitable man power today for the creation of the greatest reserve military force in history—estimated unofficially at not less than 25,000,000 men—while early autumn fog and rain were declared to be swallowing Hitler's last hope of quick and decisive victories.

Announcement of Premier Stalin's new conscription of every man between 16 and 50 not already in service to train after working hours in the use of weapons was accompanied by declarations that for Russia the struggle just had begun.

German Hopes Fade

Asserting that the German general staff faced the approaching winter with no further hope for a blitzkrieg in the east, the official organ of the Soviet armies, Red Star, nevertheless warned:

"But we must realize that the war will be long and severe."

"Realization of this measure (for conscription) is of enormous significance in the entire course of the people's war against German Fascism," Red Star added. "Our nation never was the slave of the Germans or any other enemies and shall not become a slave now."

Regular Soviet troops already in the field against the Nazis are estimated at 9,000,000 and, the British have said, Moscow also has another 4,000,000 trained and equipped and ready to go into action at any time.)

The program, which will not interrupt civilian production, will go into effect Wednesday.

The Soviet command maintained its now characteristic reserve about the situation on the far-spread fighting fronts.

Silent on Fighting

The afternoon communique reported only a continuation of heavy fighting everywhere and a series of offensive successes for the Red air fleet; it said nothing specific of the situation either about Leningrad in the northwest or in the lower Ukraine and Crimean area.

Soviet bombers were declared to have been active particularly in the Dnieperopetrovsk sector of the Ukraine, where a German troop and ammunition train was reported destroyed, and before Leningrad, where it was claimed that fifteen heavy German tanks and twenty trucks were smashed.

Moreover, Nazi airdromes along 2,000 miles of front were said to have been heavily attacked.

O'Conor Requests

on the Western Shore, was withdrawn at the last legislature after $1,500,000 was provided in a bond issue for the hospitals.

O'Conor said the program was dropped because "of the urgent need for restricting the state's expenditures as far as possible and because of information gathered from members of the boards of county commissions that immediate construction of the chronic disease hospitals would not result in the closing of almshouses throughout the state."

Opposed by Commissioners

At a meeting here last winter, several county commissioners expressed opposition to abolishment of their almshouses. They were told that closing of the almshouses was not mandatory. State officials were afraid not enough counties would send patients to the chronic hospitals.

Delegate John S. White (D-Prince George's), at a council meeting today, said most of the county commissioners "got the wrong idea. They thought we were trying to take something away from them.

"The Eastern Shore", he added, "was solid for the proposal. Southern Maryland was in favor of it but Western Maryland gave us most of the trouble."

The council decided to study Delaware's system of caring for the aged by visiting one of their almshouses in October and taking pictures. O'Conor and Walter N. Kirkman, head of the Gubernatorial Almshouse Commission, will be invited to go to Delaware with the council.

Will Meet Commissioners

The council will discuss the almshouse problem with county commissioners when they make a trip through the counties late in October. Dr. Horace Flack, council secretary, is to arrange the itinerary.

Council members said they intended to spend one day in Allegany and Garrett counties, one day in Washington and Frederick counties and one day in Montgomery and Prince George's counties with the county commissioners.

Members of the Almshouse Commission asked to serve again and to make a report to the legislative council are, in addition to Kirkman, Dr. M. C. Pincoffs, of the state planning commission; Mrs. O. Harold Williamson, president of the Maryland League of Women Voters; Harry Greenstein, president of the Baltimore council of social agencies.

Cumberland Man on Commission

J. Milton Patterson, State Welfare Department director; State Senator Frank J. Flynn, chairman of the Legislative Council's Almshouse committee; Dr. E. Paul Knotts, of Denton, member of the Eastern Shore Hospital's board of managers; Mrs. Louis N. Phipps, of Annapolis; Julius E. Schindler, of Cumberland, chairman of the Fraternal Order of Eagles almshouse committee; Frank J. Bender, regional director of the Congress of Industrial Organization; Raymond E. Kennedy, of Baltimore, and Mrs. Lillian Lottier, of Baltimore, former president of the Negro Parent-Teacher Association.

The council also appointed committees to study possible legislation regulation building and loan associations and to determine the feasibility of setting up a state fund to take care of refunds due taxers.

Many taxpayers under the existing setup, have to have special bills introduced in the legislature to get refunds when they pay too much in taxes. The proposal would set up a special fund for this purpose.

The council holds its next meeting October 8.

and east of the Mississippi with the greatest interference between Philadelphia and Harrisburg, Pa., and the Chicago district.

Felt West and South

The disturbance was felt as far west as Albuquerque and Denver north to the Canadian border and Boston and south to Atlanta. Telephone lines were affected between Minneapolis and Fargo, N. D., the American Telephone and Telegraph Company said.

The lights followed a shooting pattern mostly in green with some pink beginning in a sort of streak and ending in something resembling a flower and were described by attaches of the Hayden planetarium as "very bright."

Most scientists believe the Aurora Borealis is a manifestation of sunspots. The sunspots, themselves, appear to set up magnetic currents emanating earthward in a manner which slashes communication lines.

This cross-current effect sometimes sets up currents of considerable voltage in land lines.

Lack of Trucks

equipment was partially responsible for the delays, he added.

Several radio cars, scheduled to arrive next week, will relieve the problem of relaying messages, but no solution is in sight for the transportation problem, he said.

All other phases of the action were termed "very satisfactory" by General Reckord. He stressed that the regular army Seventy-first coast artillery anti-aircraft batteries and searchlights "did a very effective job in reinforcing the invading blues.

Problem Directors Confer

Problem directors from the Second army corps headquarters assembled officers this afternoon for a general critique and were in session two hours as umpires pointed out plans in the tactics employed by both forces.

The mock war, which ended this morning at 9 o'clock after only about three hours of conflict between the main bodies, was the opening exercise of a preliminary training period at A. P. Hill. Staff officers stated that no other long field maneuvers were planned for the division before it leaves next week—probably Thursday—for two months of maneuvers with the First army this fall in North Carolina.

Contrary to a previous order, the men will be granted leaves this weekend extending from Friday until Saturday, headquarters officers said.

would run the total of such appropriations to $12,985,000,000, in a letter to Speaker Rayburn. He said the funds were needed to prevent any "interruption in the flow of aid to those countries whose defense is vital to our own."

An accompanying draft of legislation made the stipulation that none of the funds should be paid to any person who "advocates, or belongs to an organization which advocates, the overthrow of the United States government by force or violence." All those receiving payments from the appropriation would be required to make an affidavit that they were not so involved.

A letter from the budget bureau was attached which said that of the total amount $1,875,000,000 was for "agricultural, industrial, and other commodities and articles." The sum of $1,190,000,000 was for ordnance and ordnance stores, including armor and ammunition, and $685,000,000 was for planes, plane engines, parts and accessories.

Asks "Niagara of Supplies

With Allied sources aboard calling for a "Niagara" of supplies to Russia, Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau revealed that financial assistance to that country began a month ago with a treasury advance of $10,000,000, against a prospective shipment of an equivalent quantity of gold from the Soviet Union.

The Russian ambassador, Constantine Oumansky, informed the government that the gold would be shipped within ninety days, but the Soviet government needed the money immediately to pay American manufacturers for goods already ordered.

Yesterday, Secretary of Com-Jones, the federal loan administrator, announced that an RFC subsidiary was buying $100,000,000 worth of minerals from Russia, for which payment in part would be made in advance.

In requesting the Lend-Lease appropriation, Mr. Roosevelt noted that of $7,000,000,000 already provided, a total of $6,280,000,000 had been allocated.

More Power for President

The legislative draft, which was suggested, would empower the president to authorize contracts with foreign governments under which this country would supply them with defense articles, information or services, with the foreign governments footing the bill.

It also stipulated that if the president considered any defense article to be exported under the act essential to the safety of the United States, he could retain it here rather than deliver it to another country.

The navy was obviously delighted with the new type of cargo ship. The first of its kind, named the Sea Otter, has already been launched at Orange, Texas. Authorities said the new vessels could be built by the hundreds in much less time than ordinary freighters, constructed inland and run down to the sea via rivers or canals. They would provide "a new bridge from this country to the free nations of the world," the navy asserted.

treasurer, had said earlier that "it doesn't make any difference how many ships are evenually tied up—we're going to win and get our war bonuses."

"If and when the Maritime Commission requisitions those boats," he said, "we'll take a general strike vote up and down the coast."

Hank said the Alcoa line rejected the union's proposal far more than $60-a-month war bonus and insurance for voyages to war zones as well as an extension of the war zones to cover West Indies ports.

During the day the strike spread to three more ships in New York harbor, making a total of fourteen struck ships. Of the original eleven, six were in New York, and the remainder in Boston, New Orleans and Mobile.

However, he framed this question for reporters:

Shortage in Storage

"When you say there's a shortage in storage, you say there's a shortage, don't you?"

To emphasize his contention that an emergency existed, he cited reports of the American Petroleum Institute showing that for the week ending September thirteen gasoline stocks on the Atlantic seaboard dropped 565,000 barrels, making a total decline of 1,023,000 barrels for a week period compared with a drop of only 160,000 barrels during the corresponding weeks of last year.

Thompson Guilty Of Murder Charge

Gets Life Sentence for Slaying of Mrs. Clara Robertson

LEONARDTOWN, Md., Sept. 18. (AP)—A St. Mary's county circuit court jury today found Dewey Thompson, 42, odd-job worker of Germantown, Md., guilty of first degree murder in last April's fatal shooting of Mrs. Clara Robertson.

Judge John B. Gray sentenced Thompson to life imprisonment in the Maryland penitentiary.

The jury's verdict, returned after two hours of deliberation, ended a two-day trial which began before Judge William M. Loker with Associate Judge Gray sitting on the St. Mary's county bench for the first time.

Slain with Shotgun

Mrs. Robertson was slain with a shotgun the night of April 28 at the home of Thompson's father, 83-year-old James B. Thompson, near Germantown. The dead woman's husband, John Robertson, was wounded by a shotgun charge.

Defense attorneys contended in court yesterday that Thompson was too drunk at the time of the shooting to know what he was doing.

In passing sentence, Judge Gray told Thompson that "you are very fortunate to have had such able lawyers assigned you by the Montgomery county court."

A change of venue brought the case to St. Mary's county for trial.

Thompson Thanks Judge

The jury's verdict was justified, Judge Gray said. "The court has a very grave situation in decreeing whether you should be hanged or confined in the penitentiary for the rest of your life."

"In view of the fact that you were in a frenzie with mind not stable and were in an unbalanced mental state, the court is reluctant to take your life," Judge Gray told the prisoner.

"The sentence of the court is that you be confined to the Maryland penitentiary for the rest of your natural life."

Thompson, standing before the bar to receive sentence, said "thank you" and sat down.

On Probation 8 Years

BUFFALO, N. Y., Sept. 18 (AP)—Eight years ago a young fellow named "Eddie" was brought before a city judge on a disorderly conduct charge and placed on probation for a year.

The judge told him: "Report to number one station every day."

mine fields and barbed wire encircling the city.

They said big German guns now were battering away at all of Leningrad, rather than merely at military objectives, since the Russians had elected to defend the great port to the death. The Leningrad naval base at Kronstadt was reported also under gunfire.

Successful Air Raids

The German air force reported successful raids on both Leningrad and Moscow last night; bombardment of several railroad stations and tracks behind the Russian central lines, and air attacks which cost Russian motor columns considerable losses in men and materials east of the Dnieper.

The high command said that in air attacks yesterday in the Black, Baltic, and White Sea and in Lake Ladoga, a Russian destroyer, three transports, two submarines and four torpedo boats were destroyed and sixteen other craft were hit by German bombs and presumed sunk.

Cumberland Youths Win Promotions in Maryland ROTC Unit

Capts. Orville C. Shirley, son of Mrs. Olive L. Shirey, 620 Washington street, and Edward H. Price, of Frostburg, have been appointed company commanders of the University of Maryland R.O.T.C. regiment by the university's military department.

Paul B. Hutson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Hutson, 912 Gephart drive, has been appointed a second lieutenant.

James E. Dunn, of Washington, is the new commander of the regiment. Dunn, who will hold the rank of cadet colonel, is a senior in the university's college of commerce and a member of Alpha Tau Omega fraternity.

LOCAL BUILDERS SIGN AGREEMENT

With the signing of an agreement between the Cumberland Contracting Company and the Building and Construction Trades Council of Cumberland, an A. F. of L. affiliate, yesterday morning the council became the spokesman for all workers in the industry here, according to F. P. Allender, president of the organization.

The agreement recognizes the council as spokesman of workers in general on construction jobs and representatives of trades engaged, taken collectively and individually.

A competitive scale of wages shall be invoked on highway and heavy construction work in the area, according to the agreement, because of the competitive nature of the work. This item, however, it is stressed, is not included in the contract with the intention of, in any way, reducing wages for this type of work, but only to meet competition.

The agreement also states that, whenever possible, the contractor will use men on this type of work from locals affiliated with the council. In the event that workers cannot be supplied by the unions, the contractor may secure workmen from whatever sources possible without the necessity of making the workers join the union.

Legislation designed to induce a higher wage scale for workers on highway projects, said Allender, was suggested in the last session of the Maryland General Assembly, but remained in committee.

Driver Is Fined

Keith Kermit Kimble, Shallma, charged with passing an automobile near the top of Dingle hill on Route 220 Wednesday, pleaded guilty in trial magistrates court yesterday and was fined $5 and costs by Magistrate Frank A. Perdew.

Charges were preferred by Trooper Wallace R. Caldwell.

When this statement was read to Alderson, the state director commented, "he certainly has made no such charges to me."

INTERPRETING THE WAR NEWS

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

Russian counter attacks in the center have not yet discernibly eased Nazi pressure on either the north or south flanks of the long battle line; but they may have forced Hitler into premature action in the south.

He has started what looks like the most threatening offensive of the 90-day-old conflict—an offensive aimed at severing Red army oil arteries tapping the Baku fields.

Conditions Better Later

Unquestionably, conditions for this drive would have been better a little later. The first hard freezes in the southeastern Ukraine are due next month. Until then rains along the whole course of the Dnieper from west of Moscow to the Black Sea insure high waters and sea of mud, with which the German drive toward Rostov must contend.

Once the ground freezes in the south, both tank warfare and the maintenance of communications with the rear would have been easier for the Germans until heavy snow fell.

Yet the Nazi war lord appears already to have loosed his legions in a vast interlocking double offensive east of the Dnieper that reaches all the way from the Dnesa river north of Kiev to the Black Sea and has now expanded to include the Crimean peninsula. London reports that the Crimea is already isolated by road and rail from Russian armies east of the Dnieper; and there are intimations of an impending Nazi sea-air attempt to seize the whole Crimea to bolster the eastward drive from the Dnieper.

Pressure on Turkey

The British are reported to be bringing pressure on Turkey to deny former Italian war craft now flying the Bulgarian flag the right to proceed from the Aegean to the Black Sea. This indicates that the British and Russians anticipate a sea-air attack on the Crimea.

It is feared that once the ships entered the Black Sea, Bulgaria would re-transfer them to Germany.

There are eye-witness accounts of Nazi knock-down submarines reassembled in both Rumanian and Bulgarian waters and of ship and barge concentrations to carry a seaborne German force up or across the Black Sea.

The Crimea still has sea contact with the mainland both by the Black Sea and the sea of Azov. Defense of the Peninsula would be seriously hampered by lack of land routes, however. And in German hands the Crimea could become an added threat to Rostov and a base of operations for a direct German drive toward the Baku field and its pipe lines southeast of the Rostov corner.

Four-Alarm Fire In Baltimore Plant

BALTIMORE, Sept. 18 (AP)—Great clouds of thick black smoke billowed upward from the two-story brick plant of the Greenfield Manufacturing Company today when burning stocks of rubber and old tires brought out thirty pieces of fire-fighting apparatus in response to four alarms.

The heavy odoriferous smoke blanketed the Fallsway area and enveloped the Maryland penitentiary and city jail where windows were hurriedly closed to protect inmates of the buildings.

Ten families living in a row of nearby houses were forced to flee the fumes as the cloud drifted eastward over the city

Germans Impose New Restrictions On Paris Public

VICHY, Unoccupied France, Friday, Sept. 19. (AP)—The German announced today that new severe restrictions would be applied to the entire population of Paris as reprisals for attacks on German occupation troops.

The German military authorities imposed a strict curfew to extend for three days.

Traffic anywhere in the Seine department was prohibited from 9 p. m. to 5 a. m. All theaters, restaurants and places of amusement are required to close at 8 p. m. during the same three-day period beginning Saturday.

Politics, It Seems, Just Won't Stay Down

QUITE a commotion seems to have been kicked up over the recent appointment of George F. Mueller, of Baltimore, as a "special inspector" for the state racing commission in order, it has been explained, "to maintain racing on a high plane."

Mueller, a Democrat, is the political dictator of the Fourth ward in Baltimore and by his appointment the Baltimore Sun says "politics has been introduced into the state racing commission," which some have been led to believe has been able to function without such a handicap, although a suspicion has obtained that politics has not altogether been an extraneous matter in state administration. Moreover, according to intimations of the Sun, the brand of politics represented by Mr. Mueller, seems to be of a rather beautiless nature. The esteemed *Sun*paper doesn't like that at all, and it takes the occasion to observe that "the general public has every right to object if Governor O'Conor, or his advisers and supporters, inject factional politics into the racing commission."

As for the why and the wherefore, the Sun points out that the support of Mr. Mueller is a "valuable addition to the factional strength of Governor O'Conor," who, it notes, is a candidate for re-election and is naturally anxious to increase his factional strength in the party.

Political history has it that Mr. Mueller has in the past been a Jackson supporter and that not long since he switched over to the O'Conor forces, this appointment having presumably been his reward for doing so. Wherefore the expostulation by the Sun leaves readers to guess whether it is indicating its suport in that battle, whether it is just giving articulation to the faction or factions perturbed about adroit acquisitions by the governor or whether it is just concerned about decency in government on general principles and the ethics of the state racing commission in particular. As the old saying goes, "you pays your money and you takes your choice."

The Jaycees Perceive A Great Opportunity

THE JUNIOR ASSOCIATION OF COMMERCE deserves praise for its plans to publicize the recreational opportunities so abundantly offered in the Western Maryland area. It likewise deserves support of these efforts.

As the news columns have noted, the association will give its particular attention at present to the exploitation of the winter sports available in the New Germany section of Garrett county, and will spread information about it among prospective tourists throughout the Middle Atlantic states. This is a timely effort.

The Jaycees appear to have glimpsed all angles of such a movement, including the cooperation of other agencies and organizations, and in the development of the necessary recreational facilities, especially that of providing adequate accommodation for expected visitors.

As has been repeatedly pointed out in this newspaper, the Western Maryland area presents extraordinary possibilities for recreational enjoyment, as well as wonderful scenic beauties, and these should by all means be developed to the utmost for obvious reasons. The Jaycees will do this not only with respect to winter sports but also those available for other seasons of the year. These young builders have a splendid field here in which to expend some of their energies.

Retailers Are Aiding In Economic Defense

RETAILERS like to think, according to Lew Hahn, general manager of the National Retail Dry Goods Association, that the seventeen million young Americans who registered for military service last October, and those who were more recently required to do so, signed not merely for themselves but for all of us—North, South, East and West.

Certainly the record of organized retailers would give patriotic conviction to this sentiment, for they have assumed community leadership in many crises, and are now putting their collective strength behind a movement that is aimed at price and general economic sanity and stability.

Economic defense is as much a part of the present national defense program as is the building up of the army, navy and air forces, and the determined and co-operative efforts along these lines, now being pressed by American retailers, may well prove to be a decisive factor in the degree of success that crowns this whole national effort.

Specific action to prevent unwarranted price increases was initiated by stores, through their national association, at the very beginning of the present war. More than 10,000 store buyers signed a pledge to resist price advances and to report to the association every instance of what appeared to be unwarranted price changes.

Thousands of cases were reported and investigated, with some notable examples of fair price corrections on the part of manufacturers. Many economists, in and out of the government, have gone on record to the effect that this organized retail attitude has done much to keep the general price situation within bounds, against enormous odds.

These economists point out that at this same stage of World war No. 1, the price situation had assumed alarming inflationary proportions, and the president himself has felt constrained to congratulate the retail trade for its patriotic service in this direction.

Co-ordinated action on the part of retail store owners and their buyers, through the national association, has demonstrably had a beneficent effect on the whole price structure, and an exceptional opportunity is presented in the current "Retailers for Defense" Week, to bring about wide and still more effective public support to this retail effort.

Needed Road Improvements Come Into Expectation

IT is a good thing, indeed, that the recent visit of Governor O'Conor to Cumberland permitted a show-down on the long-delayed improvement of United States highway 40 between this city and Frostburg and the widening of the McMullen highway between Rawlings and McCoole, at which the executive got a real earful as to just what the delay in these needed improvements has meant.

The situation was well presented at the brief hearing by Miles G. Thompson, acting as spokesman for the Good Roads committee of the local chamber of commerce, and it appears that the facts cited have genuinely concerned the governor inasmuch as he promised to have them considered at once at a special meeting of the state roads commission to be called for the purpose.

For that the governor is to be commended. Everybody in Western Maryland, as well as thousands from elsewhere who visit the section, hope that these long-delayed improvements will be undertaken at the earliest possible moment. Not only are they pressing, in view of the hazards involved, but the old excuse that funds are not available for them no longer obtains, this having been made clear by the governor.

Consequently, the people of this section have reason to expect action on this work, and the state roads commission should not disappoint them again.

Why the Farmers Become Puzzled

APPARENTLY a time of national emergency is also a time for the administration to sow confusion about domestic difficulties.

A Washington dispatch to the Kansas City Times states that the department of Agriculture plans to ask even greater reductions in wheat acreage than that proposed in the 1942 program, which equals the 1939 acreage, lowest since the start of the AAA.

This policy of extreme curtailment may seem strange to the citizens who have been listening to administration officials chant about food being a weapon which will not only help win the war, but also help win the peace.

But such a curtailment policy makes no sense at all if Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau's recent press conference statements are to be heeded. The versatile secretary, apparently as well-informed about farm problems as money matters, said, "everything should be done to increase production, not cut it down."

According to the United Press account of the interview, Morgenthau said that all quota restrictions on imports of Canadian wheat in this country should be removed to give the American public more for its money and stave off a further increase in food prices.

What is the American farmer trying to plan for the future to make of such absurd conflicts of ideas? Regardless of which point of view prevails finally — curtailment or plenty — this typical example of the Washington Muddle is hardly one to inspire confidence in the New Deal planners.

They might at least stop contradicting one another, and adopt the same plan.

With the approach of autumn's gloomy days, our curbstone philosopher is beginning to worry over what became of all that daylight we've been saving all summer.

Many a geography student is learning to his amazement that Africa is known as the Dark Continent—not Europe where they have most of the blackouts.

Wise Daring Is Good

By MARSHALL MASLIN

When I come to the last swift years of my life and sit down in some corner to balance my accounts and decide for myself what has been profit and what has been loss—

Marshall Maslin

As I sit there and muse over the past, over the good and the bad, the useful and the futile, the barren and the fruitful—

If some young sprig should come my way and ask me what cankering regret is mine—

I know what my answer would be.

I'd tell him: "Young fellow, my deepest regret is for those times in my life when I played safe, when I remembered that old saw about it's being better to be safe than sorry, and did not do what I knew in my heart required doing!"

—o—

Too often I have played safe and lived to regret my caution. Always I have suffered more over the challenges I have ignored than for the dares I have accepted. . . . I have been enriched by those hours when I risked peace and comfort. I have been impoverished by every decision to let well enough alone, stay in my place, and wait for the storm to blow over.

When I have been bored, it has always been a punishment for indifference to life. That boredom has come from within, has not been imposed on me by the dullness of others. When I have grieved most sorely, I have always known that at the heart of my sorrow was regret for words I have not spoken, for gestures I have restrained.

Thus I have come to know there is no meaning in that phrase, "Better be safe than sorry." So often the safety itself is the seat of regret.

I am not suggesting that any man or woman should run wild, and heedlessly, recklessly, risk life and character and the happiness of those who love them. But I do know that wise daring is the source of lasting happiness and no man whose life has been richly adventuresome comes to stale and whining old age.

Birth Records Are In a Bottleneck, Census Chief Says

Editor The Cumberland News:

Approximately 60,000,000 people are without birth certificates because they were born before the establishment of a reliable birth registration system. A serious bottleneck has thus been created, due to the legal requirement for proof of date and place of birth for all who now work or seek to work in defense industries; for all who apply for old age assistance, and for other purposes.

I write to suggest a way you can help to break this bottleneck; perform a service to your readers, and aid the defense program. If nearly one-half of the people are without legal proof of birth, it follows that nearly half your readers may profit from news of this plan.

The Census Bureau is being flooded with requests at the rate of over 600,000 a year for acceptable proof of birth from Census records. Our 500 searchers—all we can employ under present appropriations—cannot keep pace with these requests. So the Bureau has proposed a plan by which this work may be decentralized to State Bureaus of Vital Statistics. This plan involves a nation-wide WPA project for $1,250,000 as aid to the States which has been approved.

It will help if you will urge each of your readers who needs a birth certificate to inquire first of the Registrar of Vital Statistics in the State where he was born as to whether or not his birth was properly registered. If not, he should put together every scrap of evidence he can assemble—Bible records, church records, hospital records, insurance records, or other facts—and submit them to the State Registrar in an attempt to get a delayed birth certificate.

If persons seeking defense employment find they cannot get delayed certificates, they should present all of this evidence to employers. The War and Navy Departments have urged employers to use the rule of reason.

It will help if you will advise that only those apply now who have immediate need for work or old age assistance purposes; that others who may wish to obtain certificates just for future use take their time so as not to compete with people whose jobs are at stake or who are in want.

Please warn your readers against the possibility of rackets, some of which have already sprung up. All forms and instructions for obtaining the facts about births are available in State Bureaus of Vital Statistics or at the Census Bureau in Washington, D. C., without payment to any persons or corporations.

Your cooperation in this important matter will be greatly appreciated.

Are Scarcities Real?

From the Pittsburgh Press

How scarce, actually, are the metals for lack of which some defense industries are impeded and many peace-time industries are threatened with curtailment or closing?

That question should be answered by the national inventory now being undertaken by the new Supplies Priorities and Allocations Board at Washington. And finding the accurate answer can be one of the most useful, most hopeful services possible to do for this country just now.

There is widespread public suspicion that some of the metal shortages maybe, like the so-called gasoline shortage on the East Coast, exaggerated if not imaginary—or, even if real, capable of being remedied by comparatively simple action.

Whether this suspicion is justified and if, so, to what degree, we do not know. The public does not know. That is the point. The government agency responsible for priorities—for dividing available materials between the various defense and civilian industries—should know and should inform the public. We are glad that it is recognizing that obligation.

There is much reason to believe that, in the absence of adequate controls, some manufacturers high on the priority lists have been able to accumulate stocks of metals far beyond their immediate needs. There is reason to believe that the army and the navy have done the same thing. This, in ordinary times, might represent ordinary business prudence. It is very different from hoarding for speculative purposes—a practice also widely suspected of being present in the picture. But in these times it is dangerous.

APPROACHING THE ATROCITY ALLEYWAY

Defense Efforts Should Not Destroy American Business, Gen. Johnson Says

By GEN. HUGH S. JOHNSON

WASHINGTON, Sept. 18.—There is almost no complaint about the increasing burden of taxes for defense. They bear unequally on various income classes because of the healthy principle of "ability to pay" but they bear equally within each class and that is enough to satisfy the American sense of justice.

Hugh S. Johnson

There is even less complaint of the Selective Service act. It also distinguishes between classes of men on the ground of age, dependency and essential employment, but it has operated with sympathy, common sense and remarkable impartiality. That also is enough for the American insistence on fair play.

Most of the taxes bear on income and, in many cases take no more than the defense effort has added or will add. They do not take property or life-savings or deprive people of their means of earning a living.

Inescapable Obligation

Conscription demands the sternest sacrifice that a man may be called upon to make in the service of his country—the devotion of his life during his service and the possible risk of his death. But this is an inescapable obligation of every citizen, a universal obligation without which the life of this or any other nation would not be possible. That also seems to be either understood or instinctively felt and accepted by most of our people.

But what are we going to say about an application too ruthless, unstudied and headlong of some of the acknowledged and necessary principles of industrial mobilization for modern war—priorities without regard to established civilian services, employment, businesses, and property?

The recent meeting and organization of "little" business men to protest against economic extermination through failure to get supplies and inability to get defense orders or to adapt their facilities to them is an example of what is meant here.

Purely Haphazard

Unlike taxation or military service, there is certainly no equality of bearing of this burden and sacrifice. It is purely haphazard. Recent announcements of SPAB (the 1941 War Industries Board) make it clear that what has been done was without any comprehensive survey of either the total available supply or the irreducible needs all along the line and until very recently without much recognition or any consideration of this aspect of the problem and also without any attempt by conservation or any other proved World-war-One methods to parry or soften the blow.

The only answer I have ever heard to these criticisms is: "It's the hazard of war. They happened to be in the wrong place when the bomb fell."

That used to be a pretty good argument before the advent of modern war and the German concept of "the nation in arms" which means that everybody, civilians and soldiers alike, is enlisted and in the line of fire.

For example, it has long been both British and American legal dotcrine that if a battle happens to be fought on my farm to its practical destruction, that is just my hard luck and no compensation is coming.

—o—

Payment Only Fair

It wasn't French doctrine in 1918. We paid compensation even for the damage due to shelling a forest occupied by German troops. The French government helped restore damaged factories in the occupied zone. If newspaper reports are correct, the British government is giving some aid to owners of property destroyed by air raids.

Two things ought to be done about this. First, the greatest possible effort should be made in applying necessary defense controls to do the least possible damage to the American business system. We're going to need it later. Our object is not only to fight and win, but to survive any war. Second, if some people must be forced into bankruptcy and destruction of their means of living there should be some means by which all of us should share the war—sacrifice by compensation to them and taxation on the rest of us.

An Invisible Pattern?

From the Cincinnati Times-Star

Every day 75,000 passengers move through the Union railroad station in Washington, and 15,000 tourists arrive in their cars. Every month the city's airport handles 65,000 passengers. Government has taken over more than 200 mansions, hotels and apartment houses for office space. The War department occupies seventeen different buildings. Steel filing cabinets filled with carbon copies of letters and documents cover 114 acres, or about the space of an average farm. There are 44,000 long-distance telephone calls a day. The 1,000-car government automobile camp in East Potomac park is daily filled. Private auto camps up and down U. S. highway No. 1 are packed for fifty miles. Washington which, not many decades ago, looked like a sprawling, comfortable old southern town, doubled in population in the last decade, had 700,000 residents in 1940, and has spilled another 300,000 persons into suburban areas beyond District lines.

These seemingly disconnected figures declare, of course, how the government of the country has become centralized, and that a vast defense program is under way. Perhaps they say something more, not yet visible, not even foreshadowed.

Where a Nickel Does Its Duty

From the Christian Science Monitor

The squirrels, and those of us who love our goobers, hot from the shell, can rejoice that a nickel is still a nickel when it comes to our Arachis hypogaea—peanuts to you.

Inflation may be upon us, our favorite hamburger shop may not look at us for less than a dime, the 5-cent "hot dog" has shrunk to just a puppy, but Mr. Peanut is still under control in today's price spiral. What would a Saturday serial or a baseball game be without a peanut to crack at the crucial moment? What would pigeons do? At any fair or circus that boasts an elephant, watch the gleam in that keen little eye as, skillfully, your garangtuan playmate snares a peanut you have tossed from out your green-striped bag.

"On'y fi' censabag. (Get 'em while they're hot.)" Wonderful what a nickel still will do! Will ice cream cone purveyors please take the hint?

Mikado May Balk War-Like Generals And Force Peace

By CHARLES P. STEWART
Central Press Columnist

Theoretically President Roosevelt hasn't anything like the authority nominally vested in the Mikado, Emperor Hirohito of Japan. Actually he has a lot more than the Mikado has been in the habit of trying to exercise until just now. That the Jap ruler will make a success of his attempt to assert himself remains to be seen.

The Mikado
The Mikado

The president can't declare war, but he can start one, and that's what he told the world in his recent broadcast, that he intends to do, on a naval scale, unless the Axis keeps its fighting craft out of our waters—apparently meaning all the waters that there are on earth.

If they don't stay out, our ships will sink them, he warned, for they're pirates. As commander-in-chief of our army and navy, they both are subject to his orders, and he doesn't have to wait for a formal congressional declaration.

To be sure, the president is dependent on Congress to provide him with land, sea and air forces to boss around, but he has them on hand already, and can use them as he sees fit.

—o—

An Absolute Monarch

The Mikado supposedly is absolutely absolute. Perhaps he once really was so, but virtually for some generations past he hasn't been much more than a symbol. Things have been run by the Tokio civil government and the Japanese militarists.

The civilian Japanese leaders, from time to time, have proved to have good horse sense and, in general, an inclination to get along amicably with its home folk and the rest of the world. Its difficulty always has been that the militaries never have paid the slightest attention to the civilian government's policies.

If a civilian, in high official position, has been too insistent upon having his own national and international way, it's been quite the custom for a military committee to drop in and assassinate him, and that kind of assassins never have been called to account for it.

Well, at the present juncture Premier Prince Konoye has shown evidences of a disposition to harmonize relations between Japan and the United States. He wants concessions, doubtless, but he appears willing to make some in return.

But the militarists obviously won't stand for them.

On Premier's Side

Now Emperor Hirohito has chipped into the game and apparently on Premier Konoye's side. Instead of remaining a mere figure-head he behaves like making it clear that he's the genuine ruler that traditionally he is supposed to be. He's set up in Tokio what's called a National Defense headquarters.

The name doesn't sound so pacificatory, but the best obtainable information is that the organization's purpose is to hold the militarists under control. Gen. Otozo Yamada is the chief. Gen. Yamada is an army man himself, but he's represented as an old chap of a moderate, civilized type—not a typical militarist.

What'll happen next is a matter of guesswork.

It would seem to be in order for Premier Konoye and Gen. Yamada to be assassinated. But if that is attended to, what's to prevent the emperor from appointing a couple of other anti-militarists to their respective posts?

Maybe that could be guarded against by the assassination of Hirohito, too.

Can't Kill a God

The objection to that, though, is that the Mikado rates in Japan as a divinity. As per the Japan religion, he's directly descended from the Almighty. And assassinating Heaven's own representative on earth would be so radical a proceeding that it's surmised even the militarists would hesitate at it.

Some of the army's modern-educated upper officers probably don't believe in the divinity version, but the rank and file of their soldiery and the masses of all Japs do.

The emperor unquestionably could be bumped off but, in all likelihood, the sequel would be civil war, with the numerical odds tremendously against the assassinators. Unquestionably they wouldn't mind getting their own way at the cost of their own lives, for harikari is fashionable among the military Samurai, but if the civil war went against them, they wouldn't ever get their own way. And against them is how such an internal conflict would be apt to go.

Incidentally, it's common knowledge that Japanese business is thoroughly fed up on warfare.

Admiral Nomura, the Mikado's ambassador in Washington, certainly has been doing his best to appease Uncle Sam. As an admiral he doesn't class as a militarist, however.

Miss Mary Rice Tells of South American Trip

Disappointed by Bitter Cold in Crossing Lake Titicca

In speaking to members of the Circle No. 4, of the First Presbyterian church last evening at the home of Mrs. Charles S. Catherman, the Dingle, Miss Mary Rice told of her trip this summer through the western part of South America.

Miss Rice said that with four other Americans she made the motor trip from Lima to Arequipa over the Pan-American highway. This is a distance of 750 miles, two thirds of which are paved. She told her audience that there was an article in the July issue of a popular magazine stating that Arequipa cannot be reached by motor, but Miss Rice states it can be done.

Bitter Cold in July

In crossing Lake Titicca, the highest navigable body of water in the world, Miss Rice states she was disappointed, the trip was made at night and was bitterly cold, though in mid-July. She said it was interesting to know that their ship had been built in Scotland and carried piece meal by rail from Mollendo, the nearest port to Puno on the lake.

Many miles of territory were covered by train. These were often of the continental type, with unheated wooden coaches and over one stretch of territory averaged a little more than ten miles an hour.

One is impressed by the vast barren areas on the West coast, in some sections there has been no rainfall for years, she said. Sections of Peru looked as she always imagined the Sahara desert to look, she stated. As far as the eye could see were rolling sand dunes, with clumps of palms here and there to break the monotony. On the high plateau of Bolivia grow sparse tufts of grass which support herds of llams, alpacas and other animals. In southern Bolivia and northern Chile one can ride for some distance and not see a living thing. Here a fine dust seeps through the window of the train covering eveything in the compartment.

Countries Fascinating

The existence of a large Indian population made Peru and Bolivia fascinating, different from any other country she had ever seen, she said. One is attracted by the variety of brilliant costumes. In LaPaz a bright red and a shocking pink seem to be the favorite colors. It was a common sight to see barefoot men wearing knitted caps with ear flaps. The Indians both men and women were often spinning as they journeyed along the road or gathered to see the weekly train stop.

They still hold their Sunday markets at Pisac, Peru, gathering in the square before the church. Here the natives sit on the ground with their wares often piled on a beautifully woven poucho. Llamas are still the beasts of burden in the higher altitudes, but they have not entirely replaced the Indians who stagger along with a sack of grain on their backs, or a huge bundle of grass which makes them look almost like a moving bush.

Primitive Methods Used

Another part of their trip, Miss Rice said, took them through a grain growing area. It was the threshing season, and the same primitive methods of the first farmers were being used.

Of great interest to her, she said, was to find out what the South Americans thought of us. Most of the persons with whom Miss Rice spoke, she said, were Peruvians and Chileans of the middle class and the aristocracy. Those who had visited in the United States were definitely pro-United States. One man said he did not understand our criticism of Hitler when we had used some of his tactics in the Mexican war. She was surprised he was so familiar with our history. A business man told her that American capital was welcome for investment purposes but not for speculation.

Miss Rice closed with stating that judging by the number of South Americans who are learning English she believes there are many South Americans who are trying to prepare themselves to be good neighbors.

After Miss Rice's talk the regular business meeting was held and a social hour followed.

Miss Bess MacCullouch Addresses Women's Clubs

Miss Bess MacCullouch, representative of the American Women Volunteer Services, was the speaker at the annual meeting of the County Federation of Women's clubs which was held yesterday morning in the recreation hall of Centre Street Methodist church.

Miss MacCullouch outlined work urging the women of the county to organize a unit here for peace and war-time activities in various fields.

Mrs. Burton Housley was re-elected president of the Federation; other officers elected were Mrs. Franklin H. Ankeney, first vice-president; Mrs. Arthur Hoffa, second vice-president; Mrs. Nicholas P. Jordano, recording secretary; Mrs. John L. Dunkle, corresponding secretary and Mrs. P. A. Laughlin, treasurer.

Objectives Discussed

Four objectives for the year were discussed and adopted by the La Vale Parent Teacher Association last evening at the meeting held in the school. They were promotion of plans for a Community library, procure a slide projector for the school, further improve the stage fittings and secure new United States and Maryland flags for the auditorium.

Mrs. Thomas Burke was the principal speaker her subject being "The Unique Function of the Parent Teacher Association in the Community."

The first grade, Miss Mary Jane Smith, teacher, won the award for the largest attendance of parents attending.

A social hour followed and refreshments were served.

Stirring Address Is Delivered by Mrs. J. F. Phillips

Speaks to Women's Civic Club on Topic "We Must Not Sit Wishing"

All the mmebers of the Women's clubs of the county who attended the luncheon meeting given by the Women's Civic club of Cumberland, yesterday in the recreation hall of the Centre street Methodist church were enthusiastic about the inspiring talk given by Mrs. John F. Phillips, of Pittsburgh.

Mrs. Phillips, prominine in social and club circles in Pittsburgh is a former president of the Allegheny County, Pa., Federation of Women's clubs, and a popular lecturer.

The theme of her talk was her prize winning essay "We Must Not Sit Wishing." She stressed the fact that the women are the major factor in the defense army, it is their task to run the home on the salary of their husband without complaining, to keep up his health and mental attitude, as well as developing the youth rather than seeking outside activities.

She made the common everyday tasks more inspiring, and said that a notice released in Pittsburgh yesterday morning stated that 29 per cent of the youth examined for draft service have been rejected because of health.

Mrs. Phillips stressed the fact that women must have faith in the things they are doing, they must become the shock absorbers of the defense program. A smoothly run home, and breakfast at home instead of at the corner counter are great factors in saving the men's energy for defense work, she continued.

Mrs. Phillips was introduced by Mrs. William H. Blake. Club presidents were introduced by Mrs. H. T. Robinson. Mrs. J. W. Holmes gave the address of welcome and Mrs. Paul McCoy the response. Mrs. Walter E. Kriel, Hampstead, president of the Maryland Federation of women's club spoke on women in national defense and said "smiles are the same in any language." Mrs. W. H. Lee gave the invocation and Mrs. S. A. Boucher led the flag salute. Mrs. J. M. Claubaugh led the group singing with Mrs. Vernon N. Ridgely was at the piano.

Beth Synagogue To Hold Services Starting Monday

Girl Scout Week Will Open Here October 27

Mother-Daughter Banquet Will Be Held in Centre Street Church

The Girl Scout Leaders Association at the meeting Wednesday evening decided to open the Girl Scout week, the last week of October, with a Mother-Daughter banquet, October 27, from 6 to 8 o'clock in the Centre street Methodist church recreation hall.

Mrs. A. L. Rogers, chairman of the Public Relations committee reported forty Girl Scouts assisted in the United Service Organizations drive in the local theatres. Mrs. Rogers also announced all notebooks for the Helen Waring Martin contest must be turned in at the Girl Scout Little House by September 22.

The Helen Waring Martin award is given to the Troop that has received the most publicity on its achievements during the year which has been recorded in its notebook.

Members present were Miss Mary Shriver, Mrs. Donald R. Moore, Mrs. Fred Hetzel, Mrs. Mary McNally, Mrs. Wyand F. Doerner, Mrs. Ruth Lee Andrews, Mrs. A. L. Rogers and Mrs. V. W. Koffman.

CLASS MAKES PLANS FOR HOMECOMING

Plans for a 'homecoming celebration' October 3, were made at the first meeting of the season of the Philathea Bible class of the Centre street Methodist church which was held last evening in the club rooms. The celebration is for all former members.

The following committees were appointed: Mrs. A. L. Rogers, devotional; Mrs. Myrtle Garrett, program; Mrs. G. Frank Malin, publicity; Mrs. L. E. Daugherty, membership; Mrs. O. W. Marquis, courtesy; Mrs. D. A. Fletcher, song leader; Mrs. Vernon N. Ridgely, pianist.

Mrs. George W. Barnard presided at the meeting and outlined the work for the year. Mrs. Thomas Gilchrist led the devotionals.

Mrs. Georgia Wolford described her tour of the West this summer. She said the outstanding place of interest to her on the 9,000 mile motor trip was the Carlsbad caverns in New Mexico, which are seven miles long and took five hours to go through. She also described the painted desert; the petrified forest, the bad lands of North Dakota, the Grand Canyon and the western coast through California to Oregon. She visited twenty-three states.

Mrs. L. E. Daugherty, Miss Marian Adams, Mrs. Robert Frantz, Mrs. Thomas Gilchrist, Mrs. Myrtle Garrett and Mrs. Julia Fletcher were the hostesses at the social hour which followed.

SIREN GOWN

A siren gown of fine bright green rayon crepe, with long sleeved velvet jacket and fake petticoat.

Mr. and Mrs. Mays Will Be Honored At Shrine Club

Informal Party Will Be Given Saturday Night by Board of Directors

The Board of Governors of the Ali Ghan Shrine Country club will entertain with an 'open house' from 8 o'clock to midnight, tomorrow evening at the club house in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Mays, the new host and hostess of the Ali Ghan Shrine Country club, in appreciation of their efficient and satisfactory management.

Jimmy Andrews and his orchestra will play for dancing. Pupils of John Moyer will present the entertainment, which will be informal, in keeping with the informal party.

Jack Konzal, master of ceremonies, will sing a negro spiritual and present a few comedy skits assisted by Jimmie Meade (Rochester) who will also sing and tap dance. LaVerne Wineland will do an acrobatic number. Nadine Sensabaugh and John Emmerling will dance a waltz and the fascination tango.

Guests will be received by Harry A. Manley, Frank E. Smith, John Wolford, J. George Smith, Dr. J. Russell Cook, William P. Rizer, Fred Flurshutz, Paul Heuer, Howard Vandegrift, John Ehrbar, John Morgan and Irving Hoffman, Hagerstown, potentate of Ali Ghan Shrine.

No civilization is complete which does not include the dumb and defenseless of God's creatures within the sphere of charity and mercy.—QUEEN VICTORIA.

G.O.P. Women's Club Will Join State Group

Will Hold Monthly Meetings; Musical Program Is Presented

Plans were made by the newly organized Women's Republican Club of Cumberland, at the tea yesterday afternoon, in the club rooms of the Central Y.M.C.A., to join the Republican State Federation and the National Republican Federation in October.

It was also decided to be an active organization with monthly programs, the next to be held at 7:30 o'clock October 21, in the club rooms of the Central Y.M.C.A.

The musical program presented by the Rev. and Mrs. Kenneth M. Plummer, Miss Betty N. Hartsick, Mrs. A. E. Keesecker, Miss Betty Lee Burner, Miss Shirley Lindsey, Miss Rosalee Dunlap and Miss Betty Thompson was enthusiastically received by a crowd of 100 women.

Mrs. Morgan Harris was assisted by Mrs. William Strickler, Mrs. Thomas Jones, Mrs. James Morris, Miss Jeannette Barrett, Mrs. Ralph Bretz, Mrs. Paul Pletcher, Mrs. H. S. Anderson, Miss Catherine Milliman, Miss Betty Lee Gracie and Miss Lydia Milliman.

Robinson-Shapiro Battle Is Booked By Mutual Chain

Changes in Schedule Are To Be Made by Columbia

By C. E. BUTTERFIELD

NEW YORK, Sept. 19—MBS hasn't been having much luck lately with its prize fight schedule what with postponements, cancellations and changes in dates but that doesn't mean all has gone haywire. It's just one of those things.

On Friday night another scrap is coming up, with the possibility that it will go on as listed—unless. The battle is in the lightweight division, a scheduled ten rounds between Ray Robinson and Maxie Shapiro, set to begin at 9 from the microphonic lips of Don Dunphy and Bill Corum.

Schedule To Shift

This is the night too that CBS is shifting its schedule. For one thing, the First Nighter and his dramas move into 8:30. For two more things, Hollywood Premiere shifts half hour later to 9, while Penthouse party, guests Joe E. Brown and Orchestra Leader Count Basie, does likewise, by transferring to 9:30.

Listen America, NBC-Red's nutrition program at 9:30, announces George V. Denny Jr. will be guest M. C., with Madge Evans of the films also listed.

Ginny Simms, now on her own after a singing carrer with Kay Kyser, has a new five-minute series for CBS at 8:55.

Army Maneuvers: CBS 3:30, NBC—Blue 3:45, MBS 5:30.

Mexico's Loyal

directly from civilian life. Mexico's "West Point" for the army remains at Mexico City.

Naval training is being given in a five-year course at the school in Vera Cruz. The preliminary three years also may be taken at the new institution on the west coast in Mazatlan. The present naval force includes about 500 officers and 1,500 enlisted men.

If world events should take a graver turn, a military agreement between the United States and Mexico might call for United States capital to finance west coast bases and to expand the armed forces even more than now anticipated. However, the government and the people are "very sensitive" to steps that might constitute any loss of political soverignty, even by the slightest implication. But we may expect any reasonable cooperation from the present government in the Good Neighbor policy.

At any rate, Mexico has her eye on the world horizon, and she is determined to protect her own country and forge a strong link in the chain of hemispheric defense.

Alaska salmon pack reports for the first six months of 1941 showed an increase of more than nine per cent over the same period in 1940.

ouie Is Yehudi f Military Camp

A. P. HILL MILITARY RESERVATION, Va., Sept. 18. (AP)—If you er see a soldier looking up at a lephone pole or high building eading, "for the love of Pete, get wn from there, Louie; you'll fall d break your neck," don't be a ker. Ignore him.

Louie is the Private Yehudi of ompany C, of Virginia's 116th fantry regiment.

Louie, like Yehudi, is the little an who is never there; but, unlike ehudi, Louie is always perched carriously on high buildings, etc. No one seems to know exactly how Louie sprang into existence, although one story has it that a buck private created Louie to distract an officer who was about to detail him to K. P. duty.

Soldier Review Is Cancelled on Orders Of War Department

BALTIMORE, Sept. 18. (AP)—The scheduled final Baltimore performance of the Twenty-ninth division's musical revue, "Snap It Up Again," has been cancelled on orders of the war department at Washington.

The cancellation, the reason for which was not announced, came about two hours before curtain time and as patrons arrived at the theater they were turned away by members of the cast stationed at entrances.

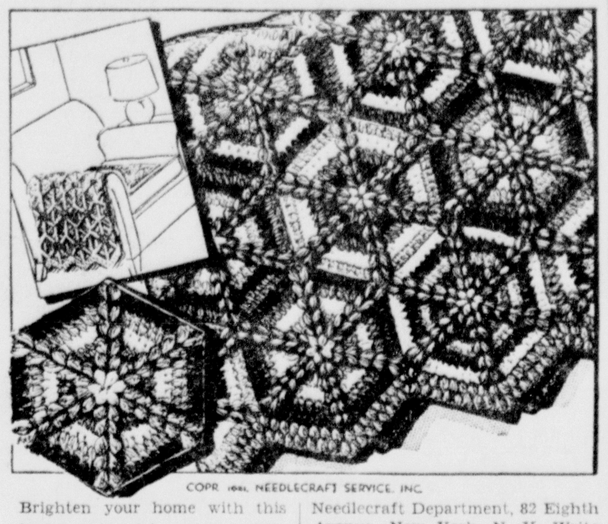

Refunds were made on all tickets purchased in advance.

Cast members said they understood that the order also provided for cancellation of scheduled performances this week in Richmond, Va., and in Washington next week.

The show opened here last week with a cast of about 200—many of them professional entertainers before entering the service—and had given five performances.

Theater officials said about 800 tickets had been sold for tonight's showing.

New school term, new school clothes—designed by Marian Martin, of course! Pattern 9867 is as smart as a clean slate — see the brisk white collar and cuffs, the little front-buttoned yoke that dove-tails with the three front panels cut on princess lines! The yoke-and-princess lines are repeated in the back. A belt starts from either side of the center panel and ties in the back for a willowy waist, or may be omitted. Another version may have the collar, yokes, sleeves and cuffs all of a contrasting fabric, or you may have long sleeves instead of short. This pattern is so easy to stitch up with the Sew Chart's aid.

Pattern 9867 may be ordered only in teen-age sizes 10, 12, 14, 16 and 18. Size 14 requires 2¼ yards 54 inch fabric and ⅜ yard 35 inch contrast.

Send fifteen cents in coins for this Marian Martin pattern. Be sure to write plainly your size, name, address, and style number.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By SHEPARD BARCLAY
"The Authority on Authorities"

FIGHTING IN THE DARK

IF A DEFENDER only could have the advantage possessed by the declarer—ability to see what cards were opposite him, in his partner's hand—he could whale the daylights out of plenty of contracts which get made. As it is, he must to a certain extent grope around blindly, making logical moves when nothing but illogical ones can win for him. Sometimes a wily player can take advantage of that by a bid based on the known mental habits of most defenders.

	♠ A 10 ♥ A J 9 3 ♦ K ♣ K J 8 7 5 3
♠ K 9 8 6 4 ♥ 6 5 4 ♦ Q 8 4 2 ♣ 4	W. N. E. S.	♠ Q J 5 3 2 ♥ 8 ♦ A J 9 6 3 ♣ 10 6
	♠ 7 ♥ K Q 10 7 2 ♦ 10 7 5 ♣ A Q 9 2

(Dealer: North. North-South vulnerable.)

North	East	South	West
1 ♣	1 ♠	2 ♥	2 ♠
4 ♥	4 ♠	5 ♥	Pass
6 ♥	6 ♠	Pass	Pass

The bidding went about as given, at several tables of a duplicate tournament. In one case North then doubled the 6-Spades and it was set two, with one trick each in spades, hearts and clubs. At several tables North bid 6-No Trumps over the 6-Spades, expecting the diamond K to be a stopper if the suit was led. In one of these cases East bid 7-Spades, was doubled and went down three tricks.

At two tables East and West let 6-No Trumps stand, in the hope of setting it. Both the top score and the bottom score for each side came from that contract. In neither case was a spade led, East trying a surprise lead of diamonds. Where it was the diamond 6, North won with his singleton K and ran all of the tricks. At the other table East laid down his diamond A, West playing the 9, so he repeated the suit, which they ran, beating the contract four tricks.

(Dealer: South. East-West vulnerable.)

Why should North prefer 6-Hearts as a final declaration on this deal instead of 6-No Trumps, after hearing his partner bid both spades and hearts?

Only Chambers Ranges Have The Revolutionary

IN-A-TOP BROILER

It's the Last Word in Broilers as it has FIVE Outstanding Features: • No Stooping • Very Fast • Smokless • Separate Burner • Sizzling Platter. It may be imitated but never equalled.

"By all means see this marvelous Range" . . . .

"This range is surprising women everywhere. So ultra modern, so luxurious . . . yet it actually saves money to own. With the Chambers Range you can cook an entire meal with a few minutes gas . . . With it many features it brings new economy . . . new convenience to your kitchen . . . Automatic controls end guess work . . . By all means see this marvelous range . . . today."

LOREEN JACOBSON
Noted home economist at the TIMES-NEWS Cooking School

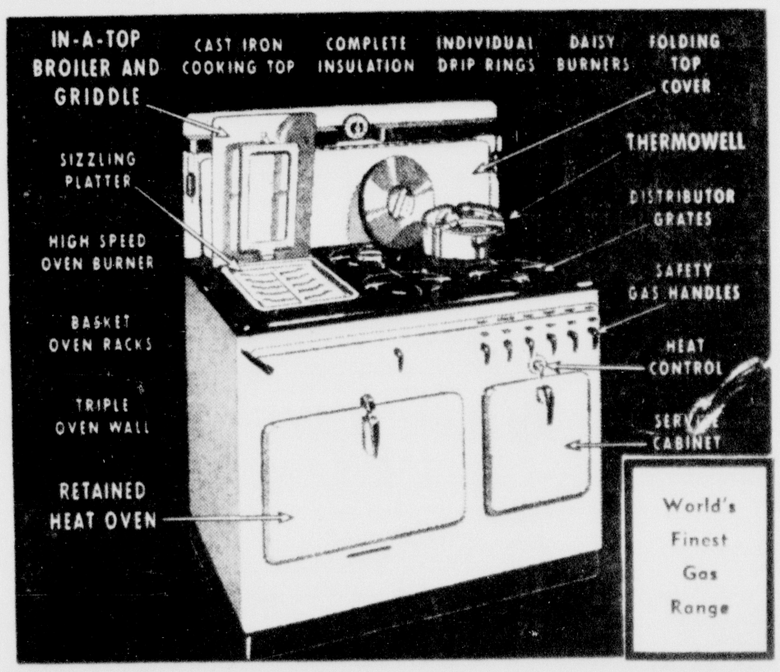

Chambers
COOKS WITH THE GAS TURNED off

IN-A-TOP BROILER offers the last word in domestic broiling. It is actually smokeless, because it is a separate unit designed for broiling. No need to cut off the good fat that nature put around fine steaks. No need to put water in the broiling pan, thereby diluting the drippings. No need to move the steak down so far from the flame that it bakes rather than broils. No need for shifting hot broiler racks. With this smokeless, speedy unit, exclusive with Chambers, you can enjoy the best "sizzling" steaks, chops, fish . . . in your own home. Serve them on the Sizzling Platter . . . the broiler pan. A Big Griddle forms the Broiler top. Remember, too, that . . .

In Chambers Oven and Thermowell, you can start complete meals with only a few minutes of gas; then turn off the gas and be free to leave the house while the cooking finishes on stored heat. As nothing can burn or scorch with the gas turned off, food need not be removed when done. Ask for a demonstration.

Chambers Ranges Sell As Low As $149.95 and You Have Up To 18 Months To Pay

• 10 MINUTES OF GAS cook three such foods as potatoes, carrots and prunes at one time on one small burner, in the Thermowell . . . start oatmeal and dried apricots at night for hot breakfast cooked all night with the gas turned off, ready when you arise • 20 MINUTES OF GAS cook pot roast and vegetables, stewed chicken soups, complete meals for the small family . . . with 2 to 3 hours of longer complete kitchen freedom. •30 MINUTES OF GAS cook dry beans, smoked meat, steamed brown bread and puddings . . . delicacies that ordinarily require hours of attention and fuel.

WHEAT GROWING GOES ON 'ASSEMBLY LINE'

Plowing en masse is just one of the large-scale production methods used on industrialized grain farms.

By JOHN M. BRUNER
AP Feature Service

HARDIN, Mont.—Thomas D. Campbell has made wheat farming into a huge industrial project that brings big town mass production methods to the vast grain fields of rural Montana.

Campbell, a graduate mechanical engineer, believes that wheat agriculture needs in general to prepare for the future is a big dose of industrialized efficiency. He has applied the theory effectively to his own vast holdings.

This season he completed his 22nd harvest with his farm equipment operating on an around-the-clock basis.

Campbell this year seeded and Raskob in operating a New Mexico project of several hundred thousand acres.

Campbell's farms are completely mechanized for a "lightning harvest."

Fifteen tractor-drawn combines cut 20-foot swaths through fields of golden brown wheat. Other tractors draw a string of wagons to strategic points where the combines, which thresh as they reap, unload. Trucks of 10 and 12-ton capacity haul the wheat to storage granaries.

"We operate just like any other industrial plant," says Campbell, who is lean, bronzed, and has snow white hair as the only visible sign he is approaching the 60-year mark.

An Acre a Minute

"We have about the same number of field bosses per crew as a factory would have foremen. When anything goes wrong we have the men spotted to take care of it.

"A truck comes into the field keeping the tractors supplied with gasoline, oil and water. We keep tire-lighting equipment on the job.

"Under ideal conditions, with the tractors moving at their normal speed of two and a half miles an hour, we can harvest an acre a minute."

Campbell was the son of a farmer and his early ambition was to reduce the drudgery of farm work. He studied mechanical engineering at the University of North Dakota and later at Cornell University.

One-time gold rush city of 30,000, Virginia City, Nevada, has dwindled to less than 500.

Brightest Child May Pen Poorly, Dr. Myers Asserts

Youngsters Who Write Illegibly Should Cut Down on Speed

By GARRY C. MYERS, Ph. D.

In the modern school, the child in the first two or three grades uses a modified form of print. It is called manuscript writing. Many children learn at play to print before they enter school. The words they read and spell at school are in print. As they write the words which they spell they write these words in practically the same form in which they see them in the book.

Very rarely is a child reported to his parents as unsatisfactory in handwriting until about the fourth or fifth grade. By this time he must write words as he spells and thinks combinations and ideas. His teacher must read what he writes. If it is untidy or illegible she usually rates the child low in penmanship.

Unless a way is found to help the child improve his penmanship, he will be handicapped all through his school life. There does not seem to be much relation between the child's degree of brightness and his handwriting. Some of the brightest children write most illegibly. Nevertheless, poor penmanship is always is a serious handicap to the student. On its account his written work, especially that on tests, is rated lower than it otherwise would be in the fifth grade, high school, or college.

Time Needed

In the first place the child at school should be expected to write with a fair degree of legibility, especially when he has all the time he needs in which to do the writing. It is doubtful whether any child should have to hurry as he writes. Most such dictation should be at half the prevailing speed.

Rarely does it do any good to ridicule or scold the child or youth for his poor penmanship. He needs first to be allowed and encouraged to write more slowly and carefully, but not bothered about any special form of movement. The poor writer is about the last one to profit from arm movement exercises at making ovals and the like. He needs to work to make it neat and legible.

Some children and youths grow more careless in penmanship as teachers and parents talk more about their miserable writing. Indeed, some college students seem to suppose that hard-to-read handwriting is a mark of distinction. Practically every person at any school age can learn to write fairly legibly. The main problem is to induce him to want to write legibly. The home can help. A good way is to prevail upon the poor penman, be he ten, fifteen, or twenty, to practice for fifteen or twenty minutes every day from good copy like that in the old copy book.

Solving Parent Problems

Q. Should parents compel an older child to take a much younger brother or sister with him nearly everywhere he goes?

A. No; rather they should forbid the younger one to be a tag-along. The tag-a-long is certainly a pest when the older child is in his early teens.

Half the Population of United States Overweight or Underweight, Doctor Says

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

From Dr. Hugo R. Rony's recently published book called "Obesity and Leanness" we make the following abstracts. The book contains much new information that should be of tremendous interest to the public:

"Of one thousand Americans, about 500 are medium weight, 330 are overweight and 170 are underweight. This ratio of body build is observed, according to statistics of life insurance companies, in men as well as women of any age group between twenty and fifty years.

"At the same time, the body build of the individual rarely varies throughout his adult life. This is especially true for persons who enter adulthood with a slender build; their weight is likely to remain practically constant during all their lifetime.

"Medium build subjects frequently gain some weight—normally about 0.6 pounds yearly between twenty and fifty years of age—as they become older, but usually not enough to become stout. Stout people may gain much more as they get older with the result that they will be still more firmly entrenched in the stout class.

Hereditary Factors

"The tendency to medium, stout or slender build is largely inherited. This has been demonstrated most clearly in identical twins; identical twin brothers or sisters always belong in the same body build class and differ very little in body weight. Furthermore, heredity is the deciding factor in the distribution of body fat, i.e., prominence or lack of fat depots in certain regions of the body. . . .

"However, body weight is also subject to environmental influence. Especially the kind and amount of available food, the amount of physical exercise and work, and certain acquired diseases of the individual may materially affect his body weight with the result that men with inherited tendency to overweight may temporarily or even permanently develop normal weight or underweight and vice versa. . . .

"Most adults maintain their weight at practically the same level without paying any attention to it. Indeed, it is not so difficult to understand why people grow fat as it is to explain why most of us do not do likewise.

Possibility of Gaining

"It is possible to gain in time much weight on very little daily extra food intake or extra rest. Thus, if you add to your usual daily diet—on which you had maintained your weight for years—but one glass of milk, you would gain about twenty pounds a year provided that your physical activities remained the same.

"If you have lived in a second floor apartment walking upstairs four times a day, and then moved to the first floor you would save enough calories to gain about four pounds a year provided that your other activities and your food intake remained as before. As such and even greater variations in food intake and physical activity commonly occur in our daily life without being followed by consistent changes in weight, the normal organism must be capable of counteracting such variations in some way—in other words, we must possess a mechanism that automatically compensates changes in food intake and muscular activity.

"What functions and organs operate the mechanism that regulates our weight? . . . First, of course, appetite.

"Another, although much less effective, element in body weight regulation manifests itself as our impulse to muscular activity."

Questions and Answers

O. M.:—"Is electrolysis a safe and permanent way to get rid of superfluous hair on the face?"

Answer—It is the best way of getting rid of most cases of superfluous hair and it is permanent.

F. C. R.: "I have heard that tea from juniper berry seed is very good for diabetes. Is this true?"

Answer: It certainly is not true. Why in the world would anybody fool around with such a crazy method of treatment for diabetes when the medical profession, after long labor and expense, have discovered a form of treatment which is thoroughly scientific and effectual, which has nothing to do with juniper berries.

E. F. O.:—"At an early date will you please state where bloodless extraction of teeth can be procured?"

Answer—In Heaven.

Today's GARDEN-GRAPH

By DEAN HALLIDAY

(Distributed by Central Press Association)

Illustrated today is the flower and seed of the Blackberry Lily. This is a deserving perennial for any garden. It has iris-like foliage, but the flowers open out flat. They are about two inches across, and are very soft orange in color, spotted with soft red.

The lily gets its name from its blackberry-like seedpods. These seedpods make good winter decorations, and are often used by florists in winter bouquets.

How To Oil Rush Seats

Rush bottom chairs often need special treatment to keep the seats from splitting. Scrub the seats with a stiff brush and plenty of hot soap suds, rinse and dry in the air. Then rub the seats with linseed oil on a soft cloth. After half an hour rub off any surplus oil.

LEITCHFIELD, Ky. (AP)—Coy Nevitt, nominated for state representative, is seriously considering riding to Frankfort, the capitol, on his thirty-year-old mule.

Nevitt, who had no opposition in the November election, did his stumping aboard the aged animal during a torrid campaign in which he defeated a veteran of four legislative sessions.

HAPPY ENDING

You Could Never Tell What Would Happen When Two Guys Like Vance and Hall Crossed Swords

By GLENN REILLY

The Supper Club was a quiet, digfied place for after-theater parties, but Manny Dix, the owner, hired a regular bouncer nevertheless. One never knew. Standing just outside of his office at the rear of the dining room, Manny made an almost inperceptible motion with his head. The bouncer sauntered over.

"You may be earning your salary in a little while, Les," he said. "That dumb headwaiter of ours just let in a load of dynamite. Look over there!"

Les looked in the direction indicated. Mr. Charles Hall, a regular diner, sat at a wall tamle chatting with Alice Williams, whom the society reporters tabbed as being the future Mrs. Hall. Coming across the bare dancing space and directly toward the table was Miss Penny Norman, who had dinner plenty of times with Miss Williams and Mr. Hall and usually some boy friend. This time the boy friend was tall and stalwart, well-bred and well-groomed.

"What gives, Manny?" Les asked, uncertainly.

"Look Over There."

"Plenty, Les!" Manny snapped, watching the meeting of the two couples with misgivings. "Better get a couple of the boys and hang around, just in case!"

"Who is this mugg with Miss Norman? I never saw him before. Is he one of the mobsters around town?" Les queried.

"No, he's Bluebook, Les—but he's bad medicine. Vance Alexander, he is, a highbrow playwright. Also, he's the boy who stole Miss Williams' affections from Hall about five years ago and then left her flat after some argument. Hall was plenty hot about that. Now Hall and this Alexander meet in our place!"

Les casually walked out and seated himself at a table not far from that occupied by the quartet in question. Two more of the help joined him, silent and dinner-jacketed and wary, waiting.

"Miss Williams, this is Vance Alexander," Penny introduced brightly as she and Vance came up to the table. "And Mr. Hall." Vance smiled frostily at Hall, and a faint color tinged his tanned cheeks as his eyes rested on Alice's tight, startled face.

"Odd, but we're all old friends already, Penny," Vance said quietly. The newcomers seated themselves at the table and gave their orders to the waiter hovering close. A strained silence, awkward and palpable, hung over the table.

"I'm glad to see you again, Vance," Alice said at last, with an uncertain glance at Hall's rigid countenance. "It's been nearly five years, hasn't it?" Vance nodded calmly.

"Four years, eight months and 23 days, if you care to be mathematical about it."

"You silly!" Penny laughed, thinking that Vance was being facetious. But Alice looked at him somberly, knowing that he was earnest. She, too, remembered how long it was since—since he had gone away. Now, it all seemed like a bad dream, with Vance sitting across from her, smiling steadily at her.

"Would you mind if I took Alice for a whirl, Charlie?" Vance asked casually as the orchestra began playing. Hall's mouth tightened and he began to say something that he suddenly checked. He nodded unsmilingly and the pair got up to dance.

"I understand that you and Charlie are marrying soon, darling," Vance said without hedging as they started circling the floor. Alice floated like a handful of mist in his arms. She was happy, he knew. Every fiber of him was alive with the feeling of her nearness. Alice laughed deliciously.

"I think that maybe that is all over now, Vance. There never was anyone but you—until I couldn't have you any more." Her eyes pleaded for understanding.

"There never was anyone but you for me, either, really," Vance told her. "I don't have to tell you how many endless nights I've spent awake thinking of you, dreaming of what we threw away, making futile plans that never could work out for us. Maybe you've had them, too."

Alice nodded. "Everything is right, now. Let's not remember the awful past. Just a few minutes ago a new world opened for us. I'll tell Charlie tonight."

Vance looked down into her eyes. The music seemed to fade away, the tables around disappeared. They stopped dancing.

"My dearest," he murmured, holding her close. "Without you, all the rest of the world is out of focus. Nothing is right. I made a success of my work after we parted, probably because I drove myself to try to forget, as if I ever could."

"Now you can write a happy ending to your tragic play, darling," the girl in his arms finished softly. Vance bent down unhurriedly and she felt his lips come to rest reverently upon her own.

Japanese Protest Sinking of Ships By Russian Mines

TOKYO, Sept. 18 (AP)—The Japanese government protested to Russia today over sinking and damage to Japanese vessels which it said was caused by floating Russian mines in the Sea of Japan.

The sea also is traversed by United States tankers enroute to Vladivostok with gasoline for Soviet planes. The Japanese note specifically warned of the danger to vessels of either Japan or "third powers."

The announcement said a Korean sailing vessel was sunk Sept. 1 off Nishisuira promontory at the northern edge of Korea by a mine which drifted from fields about Vladivostok during recent storms in that area. Nine Korean fisherman were said to have been lost.

The foreign office statement said the Japanese had filed the "most categorical protest" also on the explosion of a mine under a fishing boat Sept. 10 in which four men were said to have been killed.

(A Domei agency report in Shanghai said Japanese authorities in northern Korea had forbidden navigation of waters off that coast at night and had begun mine-sweeping operations.)

Mrs. I. M. Harrison Dies after Three Years Illness

Resident of Westernport for the Last Twenty-seven Years

WESTERNPORT, Sept. 18 —Mrs. Ida M. Harrison, 60, wife of O. A. Harrison, Cemetery road, died this morning at 7 o'clock. She had been ill three years.

She was born near Winchester, Va. and lived here twenty-seven years. She was a daughter of Archibald Frye near Columbus, Ohio and the late Mary Frye. She was a member of the Trinity Methodist church.

Besides her husband she is survived by six children, Mrs. Mary Hood, Piedmont, Mrs. Naomi Simmons, Westernport, Mrs. Mable Grable, Lonaconing, and Mrs. Alice Lenman, Cresaptown, Woodrow and Samuel Harrison at home; three brothers, James and Harry Frye, Delaware, Ohio and William Frye, Parkersburg, W. Va. and two sisters, Mrs. Reatha Rotruck, Magnetic Springs, Ohio and Mrs. Bertie Abernathy, Berwyn.

Attend Meeting

Members of the Westernport, and Lake Civic Club who attended the meeting of the Allegany County Federation of Women's Clubs held at Centre Street Methodist church, Cumberland today were: Mrs. Burton Housley, Mrs. John Fisher, financial chairman, Mesdames E. J. Roberts, U. K. Repp, Ella Rice, Lewis Engle, Paul McCoy, P. A. Laughlin, Harry Smith, Fannie Miller, William Smith, Frank Peacock, V. S. Kalbaugh, Anna Dick, R. H. Dick and Miss Ruth Michaels. Luncheon was served at one o'clock.

Play Center Opens

The Westernport Play Center was opened for registeration today, Thursday and Friday, September 18 and 19, for boys and girls of preschool age from 9 o'clock to 11:30 a. m.

Any children who failed to register will have an opportunity on Monday to do so.

The mothers will hold a meeting the date of which will be announced later.

Westernport Briefs

The Piedmont Hill Circle of the W. S. C. S. of Trinity Methodist church, will hold a flower sale and entertainment, Friday evening, September 19, at the church.

The adult Christian Endeavor of the United Brethren church, Westernport, held an outing at Reeces Road Side Park, New Creek, Wednesday evening. About eighteen attended.

Farm Conservation Election Will Be Held in Garrett

Officers for Agricultural Districts Will Be Chosen Monday

OAKLAND, Sept. 18—The annual election of the Garrett County Agricultural Conservation Association will be held the week of September 22, John H. Carter, county agent, has announced.

The election is for the purpose of electing a delegate, alternate delegate, chairman, vice-chairman, regular member, first and second alternates of the community committee in the four respective agricultural conservation districts.

Members of the association are urged by Mr. Carter to think of the agricultural conservation program as applied to their respective communities, having in mind a good man to represent those offices.

There will be four centers for voting:

Community B—districts 3, 9, 11, 12 and 15, will vote at Grantsville high school on Monday night, September 22, at 8 o'clock.

Community A—districts 2, 5 and 6, will vote at Accident high school on Tuesday night, September 23, at 8 o'clock.

Communiy C—districts 1, 4, 10 and 13—will vote at the Swanton school on Wednesday night, September 24, at 8 o'clock.

Community D—districts 7, 8, 14 and 16—will vote at the Sunnyside Grange hall on Thursday night, September 25, at 8 o'clock.

Mr. Carter pointed out that farmers who had not filled out their 1942 farm plans could do so at any of the above meetings.

Unified Plan Will Be Set Up To Have Road Modernized

Taxation without Representation Is Slogan of Campaign

FROSTBURG, Sept. 18 — The monthly business meeting of the Frostburg Junior Chamber of Commerce, held last evening, with E. Benjamin Myers, president, presiding, centered about plans to obtain immediate action by the State Roads Commission on Route 40 between Frostburg and Cumberland. It was decided to hold a joint meeting with committees from the Frostburg Rotary Club and the American Legion, Wednesday evening, September 24, for the purpose of setting up a unified plan of action for the purpose of having this much used highway modernized at the earliest possible date. Meanwhile information will be assembled to implement a campaign under the slogan "Taxation Without Representation." The Junior Chamber will seek the co-operation of the Cumberland papers and radio station WTBO. Robert Elias is chairman of the Jaycees committee.

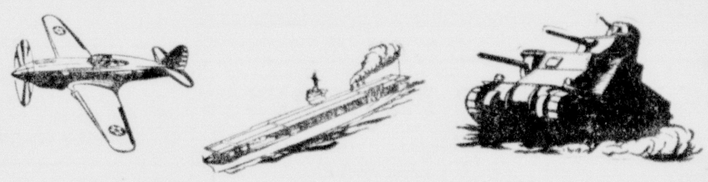

With the purpose of making attendance at committee and general meetings both more convenient and regular, President Myers has arranged that the Jaycee office in the Fidelity bank building will be open for business every Wednesday night from 7:30 to 8:30. Heretofore regular meetings have been held the first Wednesday in each month, with committee and special meetings scattered about during the rest of the month. With this new arrangement, while the first Wednesday will continue to be the general business meeting night, all other meeting possible will fall on the same week-night.

The activity calendar for this month, it was reported, is a full one, including a joint meeting with Oakland September 22, at which Governor O'Conor will speak, a similar meeting at Hagerstown to honor national president, Walter Finke, and a state board meeting near Frederick on the 28. A large number of local Jaycees plan to attend each meeting.

President Myers announced the

Draftees To Serve Only Ten Months, Sergeants Figure

FORT MONROE, Va., (AP)—Two troopers in these parts figure selectees will do less than ten months of actual work in the army even if they serve two and a half years.

Sergeant Sisler of Camp Pendleton estimated that men in service thirty months would spend only 280 days at their various tasks. He arrived at that conclusion after deducting the time a soldier is off duty each day and night, Wednesday and Saturday afternoon leisure periods, Sundays, a three-day leave each month and annual ten-day furloughs.

Sergeant Williams of this post made similar deductions, but also took breakfast, and came up with the estimation that draftees would devote precisely 139 and 17-24 days to actual duty.

Public relations officers suggested that any comments or queries be addressed directly to the sergeants.

Water Supply Ample

Report of a spreading drought which is threatening the water supplies of some Western Maryland cities does not affect Oakland or Garrett county, as the water supply in towns of this vicinity is ample.

Oakland's two reservoirs which have a total capacity of 750,000 gallons, overflow each night, according to James Compton, water superintendent. The city has six wells and a spring and at the present time only the spring and three wells are being used, leaving three wells in reserve.

Water supplies in other Garrett county towns are said to be adequate. Rain in this area has been sufficient this year to keep wells and springs at a good level.

Frederick and Hagerstown have reported a serious shortage of water in their reservoir.

Western Maryland Gridders To Wear Large Numbers

Will Use New System for Easy Identification of Players

WESTMINSTER, Sept. 18.—Western Maryland is one of the few colleges to use the new numbering system for the easy identification of players with their positions. The backfield men will have numbers up to 49, the centers will have numbers in the 50's, the guards 60's, tackles 70's, and the ends 80's.

The coaching staff has its eyes fixed on the season opener with Cortland which is only a week and a half away, and is working hard to make a machine-like offense. Coach Charley Havens has stressed this point greatly in the last few days, using new plays and different combinations. In yesterday's scrimmage, the first team backfield was made up of Manny Kaplan at fullback, Art O'Keefe at wingback, Irv Biasi at the tailback, and Bob Sorensen and Ed Lewis were alternating at the blocking-back post.

Bob Bricker, who will back up O'Keefe, was the best ground gainer in yesterday's workout, and Kaplan's kicks were booming as they were last season.

The hot fight for line positions is still being waged, and probably no decision will be made until game time. Nearly all of the linemen are of equal ability.

The freshman football club will play five games this season, opening with Massanutten M. A. at Woodstock, Va.; on Oct. 10, followed by Gettysburg on Oct. 17, away; Mercersburg on Oct. 25, away; Dickinson J. C. on Nov. 1, at Williamspost, Pa.; and Bullis Prep on Nov. 15, at home.

Free Lunch for Editors Starts Oyster Season

NEW YORK (AP) — Ninety-two New York editors had oysters on the half shell for lunch in their private offices September 2.

Early morning postal cards warned them to wait for lunch until a package of gastronomical interest arrived. The package was the oysters plus a pearl, all the fixings and a fork.

This prize promotion had two purposes: To remind the writers that oysters R in season and to deliver a copy of a new narrative cookbook of 40 recipes. The book, M. F. K. Fisher's, "Consider the Oyster" (Duell, Sloan and Pearce, $2), also tells the story "of the oyster's dreadful but exciting existence, its disconcerting sex life and its delicious ways of dying."

NOTICE TO BIDDERS

TAKE OFF UGLY FAT
May Lose 3 to 5 lbs. a week
yet EAT plenty
No Reducing Drugs — No Massage

Men and women all over the United States are reporting remarkable results in losing weight. Many tell of reducing 20 pounds a month and more. These people are following the Plan of Dr. Edward Parrish, noted physician, former Health Officer, State of New York, Surgeon-in-Chief, a Medical Staff, U.S. Army, Editor, Lecturer.

Dr. Parrish's Reducing Plan makes reducing a pleasure. A pleasure because it allows you to EAT PLENTY, requires no exercises. Harmless, too, because it calls for no reducing drugs, no loss of vitality.

Here is Dr. Parrish's Reducing Plan EXACTLY as given by him over the air to millions: For lunch take 2 teaspoonsful of Cal-Par in a glass of fruit juice, or any beverage. Take nothing else for lunch except a cup of coffee if desired. For breakfast and dinner EAT AS YOU USUALLY DO. Don't cut out fatty, starchy foods—just cut down on them. Try Dr. Parrish's Reducing Plan for one week. You and your friends will be amazed at the vast improvement in your figure. Most overweight cases should be helped by Dr. Parrish's Plan.

Cal-Par is not a reducing drug. It is a special purpose food supplying calcium, iron, phosphorous, and Vitamin D. Get a can today, plain or chocolate flavor. Cal-Par costs only about 3c a day to use.

Money back if not satisfied—FREE: With our first purchase of Cal-Par, a copy of Dr. Parrish's 7 Day Reducing Plan, a 48-page book which includes a personal talk on reducing by Dr. Parrish.

Mexico's Loyal, Growing Army Adds Strength to Hemisphere Defense

By MALVINA STEPHENSON
Central Press Writer

MEXICO CITY, Sept. 18—Uncle Sam can count on the fellows south of the border. They're sold on the program of hemispheric defense.

"Mexico will make every sacrifice necessary for the improvement of the national army," Gen. Pablo Macias, secretary of national defense, told me in an interview at his military headquarters in the Palacio National. "We are working very hard to better our forces, both in the training of the individual and the acquiring of equipment."

Although Mexico's army is no match for the blitz troops of major powers, it has an important function in supporting the constituted government and strengthening hemispheric defense. Rebellion or civil war at the border could prove very dangerous to the United States in these critical times.

Anti-Nazi

As to the so-called Nazi threat in Mexico, however, most high officials and diplomatic observers are increasingly optimistic. And strong action taken by both the United States and Mexico recently has brought new professions of loyalty from sources previously considered dubious.

Virtually the entire staff of the Mexican army is anti-Nazi and strong for the administration of President Manuel Avila Camacho and for the United States, I learned from an authoritative survey conducted privately by army heads.

"Quit predicting that the Latin countries are going Nazi," Ambassador Josephus Daniels recently appealed to the United States in a radio address. The great majority is with the democracies, and will remain so, if we show the proper confidence and respect, he told me later in commenting on the situation.

However, if any attempts at sabotage or uprisings should be provoked by subversive elements, the Mexican troops would be quick to suppress the trouble, observers point out. Centuries of combatting political intrigue have provided this experience.

As well as watching threats to internal sability, the army now has an eye on potential outside enemies. The new preparation puts the accent on mechanization and the expansion of the forces.

Military Supplies Short

Mexico's current weakness, of course, lies in its lack of capital, coupled with the market shortage in implements of war. United States production is being geared to the Battle of the Atlantic, and government officials estimate that it may be another 12 months before we can spare any major war supplies for Mexico.

Meanwhile, under the general direction of President Camacho and General Macias, Mexico is forging ahead, preparing to train new forces and girding to face any eventuality that the world crisis may bring.

The personnel of the regular army totals approximately 52,000. It is supported by 75,000 reserves who get weekly instruction from army officers. Under the obligatory military service law, a first class of 50,000 is expected to be called early in 1942, with an ultimate total of 200,000 in two years. These forces can replace the agrarian reserves, and release the regular army to focus on technical training and mechanization.

Mexico has its own small arms factories, but must look to the United States for heavy anti-aircraft guns, airplanes, trucks and other motorized and mechanized equipment. A current inventory reveals only 75 or 80 small trainer planes, a half dozen tanks and a small navy without submarines or destroyers.

More Air Strength

A propaganda campaign now is being carried on in the Mexican newspapers to awaken the people to the condition of the nation's air force. Officials seek to muster broader political support for the purchase of new planes, at least 100 as soon as possible, and more later. Records now show 190 pilots with a total air force of 500. Chief of flying forces is Gen. Roberto Fierro. During a revolution, he was the first military aviator on the American Continent to bombard ground troops from the air.

Government officials recently made satisfactory tests of the first trainer plane to be constructed in Mexico. It was manufactured in a Mexico City plant, expropriated after failing to comply with certain government stipulations.

Because of the high altitude of Mexico City, the aviation school is being moved to Monterrey. Originally, the opening at new quarters was scheduled for August 15, but successive delays now indicate an opening as late as October 15. Here the government hopes to train 200 cadets every six months, expediting the procedure by drawing students

Barbers Good Men In Defense Crisis

BALTIMORE, Sept. 18. (AP)—The barber shop, in the opinion of J. M. Cheek of High Point, N. C., "Is one of the best places in the world to talk up the seriousness of the foreign situation, to arouse popular support of the president."

"The people aren't awake," Cheek, acting president, said at the convention of the National Association of Barber Examiners. "We've got to take the word back to them. And the barber is one of the key men for the job."

They Need Wings

NEW YORK, Sept. 18. (AP)—Imprisoned in a stalled elevator in the criminal courts building for a half-hour today, twenty handcuffed prisoners sang—

"We wish we had the wings of an angel."

TYPOGRAPHERS' 'FRIEND'

Antonio Chamas Papatheodorokoumountourogianakopoulos (above), Nogales, Ariz., confectionery store owner, and native of Greece, possesses what he believes is the longest surname in the United States. It contains thirty-seven letters and "just grew" he says because his family added letters upon the death of elders in the family circle.

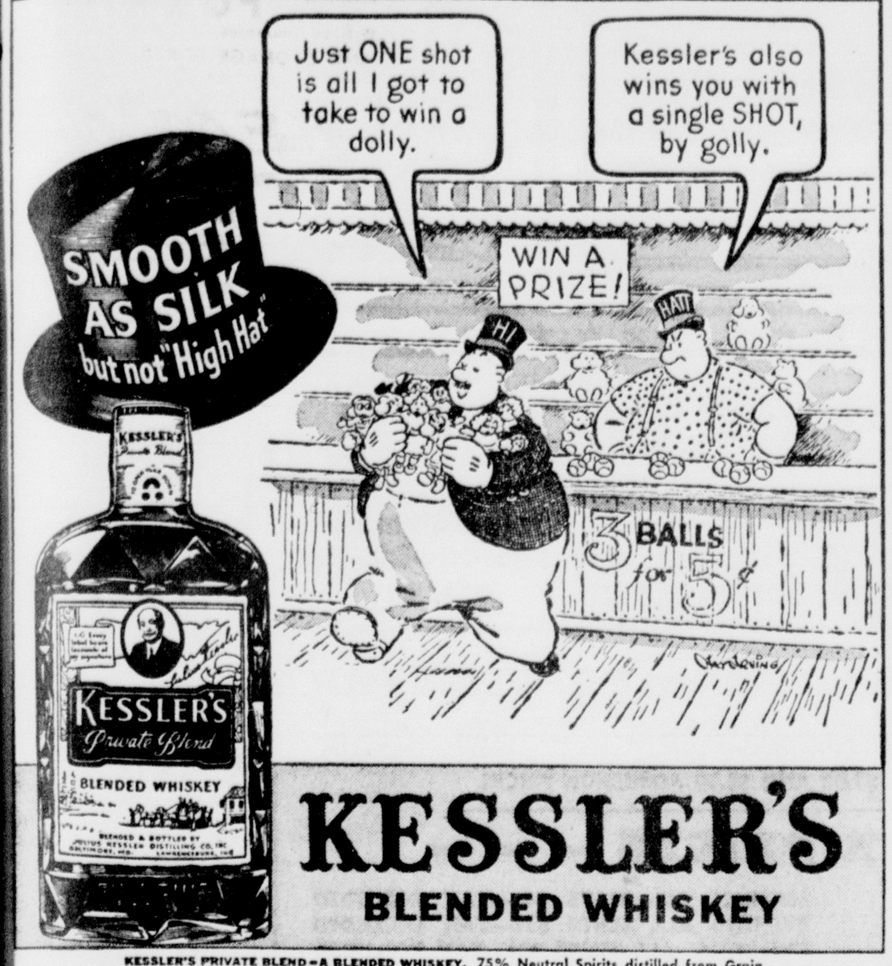

Two Blind Men Will Open Shop

ROME, Ga., Sept. 18. (AP)—Two blind men are installing $1.000 worth of machinery and other equipment in a shop here, when installation is completed they will be prepared to serve those who want:

1. Grist ground.
2. Feed milled.
3. Furniture manufactured.
4. Furniture repaired.
5. Piano tuned.
6. Any sort of radio or electric service.
7. A lawyer.

Vaughn Terrell, blind Rome attorney, and his co-worker Stanley Rogers, want to demonstrate their theory that "blind people can do skilled work if given the opportunity."

'Dive Bomber' Is Epic of the Air

Every type of fighting and observation plane used by the United States Navy, including the newest super-bombers and fastest pursuit and interceptor planes off the assembly lines, were used in filming the picture opening at the Liberty today, "Dive Bomber," all-in-color special in which Errol Flynn and Fred MacMurray are co-starred.

But what is more important from the navy standpoint is that the entire picture was filmed without interruption of any training or flight routine necessary under the current emergency defense program.

To see that this was so, and also to see that Warner Brothers got every possible help, official Washington assigned Commander J. R. Poppen and Commander Seth Warren, U. S. N., to work with director Michael Curtiz and the company in filming "Dive Bomber," parts of which were made in Pensacola and at Pearl Harbor, in addition to those scenes made at the San Diego base.

The cast, in addition to Flynn and MacMurray, includes Ralph Bellamy, Regis Toomey, Robert Armstrong, Allen Jenkins, Herbert Anderson, Craig Stevens and a score of other young leading men in minor cadet and pilot roles. Only woman in the cast is the startlingly lovely Alexis Smith who appears briefly but memorably to stir up a little trouble between Flynn and MacMurray.

Real stars of the air epic are the planes themselves, and the big ships that serve them. Many of the scenes were made aboard one of the larger plane carriers, the Enterprise, which happened to be stationed at San Diego while the Warner Brothers company was on location there.

Gary Cooper Stars In "Sergeant York"

Gary Cooper stars as Alvin C. York, the straight-shooting mountain boy who dislikes killing but turns out to be the finest hero of the World war and performs the unbelievable feat of capturing 132 Germans. Joan Leslie has the feminine lead as a demure farm girl who later becomes York's wife. Walter Brennan, twice winner of the Avademy Award, and fresh from his grand performance with Cooper in "Meet John Doe," plays the role of York's best friend.

The remainder of the cast is made up of such splendid players as George Tobias, Stanley Ridges, Margaret Wycherly and numerous others. Howard Hawks directed the film which was produced by Jesse L. Lasky and Hal B. Wallis. The original screen play was written by Abem Finkel, Harry Chandlee, Howard Koch and John Huston from Sergeant York's diary.

RECEIVES FRENCH MEDAL

Sergeant York (Gary Cooper) receives the French Croix de Guerre from Marshal Foch (Jean del Val) for his heroic World war exploit.

CO-STAR IN FILM

Merle Oberon and Melvyn Douglas put the accent on love in this scene from "That Uncertain Feeling," currently appearing at the Maryland theater.

Plane New and Drastic Is "Geodetic-Plastic"

The "Geodetic-plastic" airplane is seen for the first time on the screen in Paramount's "Power Dive," which opens today at the Garden theater. In a daring drama of flying fools and vibrant with romance, it traces the development of planes from the time they are in the blue print stage to the great day when they are put through their paces by test pilots—to prove their worth under the severest of conditions—or to go to the junk heap.

When John Forrest Knight was handed his diploma in law from the University of West Virginia, he promptly stowed the sheepskin away in an actor's trunk. His classmates, who called him "Fuzzy," urged him to go on entertaining people, even as he had done in college.

Fuzzy is now a favorite comic of western films, latest of which is Universal's "Boss of Bullion City," now at the Garden theater and starring Johnny Mack Brown.

Sterling and Hunt Play Leading Roles

Thrills of big-city racketeering, homely, human drama on a country farm, whimsical comedy and poignant heart interest blend in a gripping story in "I'll Wait for You," now playing at the Embassy with Robert Sterling and Marsha Hunt scoring in the romantic leads.

The story deals with Lucky Wilson (Robert Sterling), a young racketeer, reared and educated in the underworld. Trailed by the police and caught through his penchant for flirting with pretty girls, he escapes, though wounded, and is found unconscious by kindly farm folk who take him onto their farm. Here, nursed to health, he finds kindness and honesty for the first time in his life, falls in love with the farmer's pretty daughter (Miss Hunt), becomes the pal of her "kid sister" (Miss Weidler), and through his new environment finds a path to regeneration and a new life.

Rooney's mother in the Hardy Family pictures, has one of her best roles of this type as the mother of Miss Plant and Miss Weidler, and Henry Travers gives an inimitable performance as the old farmer who insists on smuggling applejack to the wounded guest when the "women folk" want him to drink milk. Paul Kelly is convincing as the police inspector who is the gangster's nemesis. Other players turning in expert performances are Don Costello, Reed Hadley Theodor von Eltz, Linda Ann Borg and Carol Hughes.

Beautiful photography by Sidney Wagner, especially in the pastoral love sequences, adds effectiveness to the story. David Snell composed the dramatic musical score.

On the same program are Ray Rogers in "Nevada City" and chapter number one "Jungle Girl".

Alarm Clock Appears In Maryland Film

That great American uplifter the alarm clock, is ordinarily just an unpleasant noise in the morning but ahe one which appears in Ernst Lubitsch's new picture is also somewhat of a symbol.

There hasn't been an alarm clock in any of his previous thirty-odd pictures for the reason that all of them have dealt with the Continental scene, where people seem to find other ways of prying themselves out of bed. There is one in "That Uncertain Feeling," the new Col Lesser comedy at the Maryland theater, because for the first time in his career he is dealing with exclusively American characters in an American locale and no American home is complete without its alarm clock.

So, among the props in the bedroom of Melvyn Douglas and Merle Oberon, who play the married couple in the picture, as an alarm clock. It is steamlined, smartly enameled, and very expensive but its purpose in life is just the same as that of a dollar model—to get an American hnusband up and off to the great American game, business.

Profit-Taking Cripples Market After Leaders Hit High Ground

Many Fractional Losers Appear in Closing Quotations

BY BERNARD S. O'HARA

NEW YORK, Sept. 18 (AP)—Profit cashing on Wednesday's brisk rally crippled the stock market today after leaders who had sprinted into former recently, managed to hold new high ground for the year with gains of fractions to a point or so at the opening.

While there were few weak issues, there were enough fractional losers at the close to put the Associated Press average of sixty stocks down .1 of a point at 44.

Transfers for the full proceedings totaled 790,765 shares, against 886,560 the day before.

Shares on the losing side included U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, General Motors, Chrysler, American Telephone, Western Union, Anaconda, Kennecott, du Pont, Union Carbide, Douglas Aircraft, United Aircraft, J. I. Case, U. S. Rubber and N. Y. Shipbuilding.

Consolidated Aircraft, strong per a gain of ⅝. American & Foreign Power preferred was up 2 at a new 1941 high. Emerging with modest improvement was Woolworth, Chesapeake & Ohio, Texas Corp. and Westinghouse.

In an irregular Cub American Gas was given a lift along with Lake Shore, Niagara Hudson Power and Singer Mfg. Volume here was around 151,000 shares versus 174,000 Wednesday.

Gains of fractions to more than a point in a selected group of rails and foreign issues helped the bond market keep an even course today.

Trading was moderately active at $7,359,850, par value, compared with $7,653,975 on Wednesday.

U. S. governments were quiet.

Best friends were amazed in woman's improved looks... new energy...pep!

A marvelous change can be brought about by overcoming miserable digestive complaints, underweight, sluggishness and loss of appetite—all by two important steps—

Restore vital digestive juices in the stomach... energize your body with rich, red blood. Here's how!

If you are one of those unfortunates who have been ill, or have suffered with colds, the flu, worked under a strain, failed to eat the proper foods, or have been vexed by overtaxing worries... yet have no organic trouble or focal infection... and your red-blood-cells have become reduced in vitality and number... if your stomach digestion refuses to work properly, then here is good news for you!

S.S.S. Tonic is especially designed to build back deficient blood strength... to revive and stimulate those stomach juices which digest the food so your body can make proper use of it in rebuilding worn-out tissue. These two important results enable you to enjoy the food you do eat... to make use of it as Nature intended. Thus you may get new vitality... pep... become animated... more attractive!

Feel and look like yourself again

Yes, when you tone up the stomach and get its digestive juices flowing freely you should enjoy again that old-time zest for food... stomach digestive misery should vanish. S.S.S. Tonic also gives you the mineral matter in soluble and digestive form to restore your blood to its rich, red color... this makes for greater strength... color in your cheeks... resistance against disease attacks.

Because S.S.S. is in liquid form it begins its work as soon as you take it. Take the S.S.S. treatment a part of your daily diet. You will be delighted with results. Scientific research shows that S.S.S. Tonic usually gets results. Thousands and thousands of users have testified to the benefits it has brought to them—that's why so many say "S.S.S. Tonic builds sturdy health and makes you feel like yourself again." © S.S.S. Co.

affiliation with the local Junior Chamber of the Rev. John F. Sweltzer, pastor of Salem Reformed church, and William C. Meerbaugh, proprietor of Bill's Service Station, Grant street.

Mrs. Howard Myers Dies

Mrs. Howard Myers, 48, a native of Lonaconing and a resident of Eckhart since her marriage, died Thursday morning at her home, Parkersburg road, after a lingering illness. She was a daughter of the late George and Christine Hadley, Lonaconing, and leaves her husband, and one on, Earl, at home; four brothers, James Haley, Lonaconing; Albert, Cleveland, Ohio; Harold and John, Davenport, Iowa, and three sisters, Mrs. Cornelius Grindle, Lonaconing; Mrs. Lawrence Feeley and Mrs. William Endley, Baltimore. She was a member of the Eckhart Baptist church.

Gertrude Harvey Weds

Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Harvey, Midlothian, announce the marriage of their daughter, Gertrude, to Charles Hersel, Baltimore, Saturday morning, September 13, at Sacred Heart church, Foster avenue, Baltimore. The bridal couple was attended by Miss Mary Hersel, sister of the bridegroom, as maid of honor, and Allen Cooper as best man.

Mrs. Hersel, who was given in marriage by her father, was attired in white satin and veil of seeded pearls. She carried a bouquet of lilies of the valley and white rosebuds. Miss Hersel was attired in an orchid colored gown and carried a bouquet of yellow roses.

Immediately following the marriage ceremony, a reception was held at the bridegroom's home, with over two hundred guests in attendance. After a honeymoon trip to New York city, they will reside at 807 South Oldham street, Baltimore.

Concert Program Ready

Miss June Lee Shade, student manager of the annual concert course of Frostburg State Teachers college, announces the booking of the following artists for this year's presentation: The Siberian Singers, a Russian group who sing their native songs; the Continental Ensemble, who feature gypsy selections; Sir Stanley Chapple, an English nobleman and an exponent of English music; and Louis Weld, pianist.

Season tickets are now being prepared for distribution. Miss Shade will be assisted in the distribution by the following committee: Betty Everline, Mary Schaefer, Jessie Bryant, Mary Filler, James Wishard, Charles Lizer, Joce Shockley, Joyce Brandenburg, Rachel Louell and Donald H. Golden.

J. U. Club Meets

The J. U. club met Tuesday evening at the home of Miss Lydia Carter with the following in attendance: Dorothy and Mildred Watkins, Anna Walbert, Dorothy Plummer, Mrs. Olive Wilson, Helen Broderick, Inez Meagher, Mary Hanna and Thelma Hansel.

The club also entertained with a wiener roast over the weekend at New Germany. Besides members of the club, those attending included William and Harold Hess, Wayne Corbin, Owen Duckworth and Donold Dishong.

The next meeting is scheduled for September 30 at the home of Miss Helen Broderick.

Frostburg Briefs

Ridgeley Rebekah Lodge, No. 3, I. O. O. F., will hold a special meeting Friday evening, September 19, at 7:30 o'clock, in Nickel's hall. The meeting, planned as an observance of the ninetieth anniversary of the founding of the order, will be attended by Grand Assembly officers from Baltimore and other parts of Maryland.

The Senior Christian Endeavor Society of Salem Evangelical and Reformed church will meet Friday evening, 8 o'clock, at the home of Miss Mary Jennings.

There will be special Communion and "Love Feast" services at the Church of the Brethren, Friday evening, September 19, at 6:30 o'clock.

Frostburg Lodge, No. 470, B. P. O. Elks, will open its fall social season with open house Friday evening. Music for dancing will be by Ralph Bender and his orchestra. John Durst is chairman of the committee.

Committee Chosen For Big Hallowe'en Celebration Here

Ten Appointed by Two Groups for Annual Affair on October 31

Members of two local organizations have been appointed to the committee for the annual Hallowe'en Celebration to be held here Friday, October 31, under the sponsorship of Henry Hart Post No. 1411, Veterans of Foreign Wars, it was announced yesterday by George R. Golladay, general chairman.

George Schwarzenbach, W. Donald Smith and John O. Dice will represent the Cumberland Chamber of Commerce on the committee while the local V. F. W. post will be represented by Ralph Lindamood, post commander, Ralph L. Rizer, Thomas K. Whalley, Howard Johnson, Charles Bujac, William L. McKenzie and Thomas F. Conlon, honorary member of the post.

John McAlpine, president of the Cumberland Junior Association of Commerce, will select members of his organization to serve on the celebration committee.

Cash prizes totaling $408 were awarded to organizations and individuals in the Hallowe'en celebration held here last year.

Thousands See

amateur astronomer, said that it was "very unusual" for such a display to be visible so far south. Both described it as the most spectacular they had ever seen.

These expert observers noted, too, that it appeared to extend beyond the zenith into the south, an unusual occurence, although it might have been merely a reflection.

The display was most noticeable in the Northern sky, although it extended to the West in a great degree, to the East in somewhat smaller measure and slightly to the South.

Various Colors Visible

Beginning as vivid streaks, some white, some green and blue, the lights swept across the sky in rippling movement. Later, pink, rose and red shades appeared.

Then suddenly, the beams of light seemed to converge on a central point directly overhead, the zenith. From all directions, like the petals of some gigantic flower, they met in the center of the heavens, which was suffused with a red glow.

For a time, the streaks of light were high in the Heavens, then neared the horizon, particularly in the North. Some observers noticed, too, a rainbow-shaped beam across both the Northern and Southern skies.

The lights, believed to be a manifestation of sunspots, were most vivid for most observers between about 7:40 and 8:30 p. m., although Wickard said they were at their best at Allegany from 7 to 7:30. Most clearly seen from areas of the city distant from downtown lights, they drew thousands to the streets and many to housetops. They were just barely visible from downtown Cumberland because of the brightness of street and store lights.

The display had faded at Allegany at 10 p. m.

The capricious flickerings played havoc with communications throughout the world, and the Associated Press teletypewriters at the News office produced an annoying volume of garbled reports.

The Aurora Borealis, according to scientists, is a display of light in the high levels of the earth's atmosphere. It is most frequently seen in a broad belt which lies along the boundary of the northern polar region.

The northern lights generally show greatest intensity and frequency along a path which crosses North America from Alaska in southeasterly direction to Hudson Bay and Labrador. This line of maximum intensity crosses Northern Norway and skirts the Arctic coast of Siberia, and it is unusual to see a display south of this area.

Intense and widely spread auroral displays, such as last night's, are associated with high sunspot-activity and world-wide magnetic-electric storms, which explains the disruption of communications.

The region in which auroral displays occur has been found to be approximately between fifty and 200 miles above the earth's surface. Analysis of the light of aurorae has shown that it is produced by electrical discharges in oxygen and nitrogen.

The shapes and directions assumed by the aurorae and their positions with respect to the earth's magnetic field show that this magnetic field and its variations are controlling factors in the formation of displays.

The association of aurorae with solar and terrestrial magnetic-electric phenomena indicates that the sun is the source of energy that produces the aurorae. The electrical condition of the upper atmosphere is largly determined by the incident ultra-violet light and streams of charged corpuscles from the sun and by high-speed charged corpuscles from outer space, known as cosmic rays.

The exact mechanism by which one or more of these forms of energy produce the aurorae is known, but researches are groping their way toward an explanation by new methods, including the use of radio waves to analyse the earth's upper atmosphere.

National Labor

L. the NLRB attorney said that the Wagner act was designed, in part, to remove the causes of the strikes which beset the nation during that time.

"In the first World war," he said, "the majority of all industrial disputes concerned two issues—the eight-hour day and recognition for the labor unions involved. In fact, over fifty per cent of the strikes prior to the passage of the National Labor Relations act had as their issues matters now prescribed as unfair labor practices by that act.

"Consequently, the National Labor Relations act was passed in order to reduce the number of strikes arising from those causes—that is to reduce the number of strikes for recognition and against discrimination against union members."

Cobey quoted statistics to show that the act had accomplished its purpose in this respect, declaring that since 1938, "the nation has had an industrial upswing, and yet for the first time in our history, this has not been accompanied by a rise in the number of strikes."

Admitting that "this phenomemon is not entirely due to the presence of the NLRA," Cobey said, however, that its presence explains in part, at least, why in two periods of approximately equal industrial activity—1936-37 and 1939-40, the latter period had about one-half the number of strikes of the former, only but one-third as many workers were involved and only one-third as many man-days lost.

Industrial Pattern Changed

"In short," the Kiwanians were told, "the peace of the conference table and written contract did in a considerable measure replace the picket line and the boycott of economic war between those who employ and those who are employed."

The Wagner act was described by the speaker as changing "the pattern of American industrial relations overnight by legislative fiat.

"The change was tremendously significant. It added a new civil liberty at a time when the rest of the world was, and is, abandoning its liberties, which are the touchstone of modern civilization and culture.

"Like workmen's compensation, it gave the workingman a socialized means of redress for injury, the expenses of which were borne by the taxpayer. Furthermore, it gave him a legal forum for the airing of certain of his grievances. And importance of this gift of an escape-valve cannot be over-emphasized.

"The law, by and large, is concerned pretty much with property rights, and as a consequence, the workingman, having often little or no property, sees the law only as a hostile force in his life . . . Here, for once, the law is his friend."

Cobey went on to point out imperfections in the law, asserting that "the future may prove that the law over-reached itself."

As an example, he pointed out that "today, unions may say what they like about employers, limited only by the law of libel and slander.

"Under the National Labor Relations act, the employer, or any of his agents, may not, under certain circumstances, speak disparagingly of labor unions or their leaders, however true those remarks may be.

With NLRB Three Years

"Furthermore, although the employer is under a duty to deal with the union in good faith, no such duty rests on the union in dealing with the employer, except as applied collaterally through the exercises of its administrative discretion by the board."

Cobey has been connected with the NLRB for about three years, having been stationed in Washington for half that time and on the West coast the remainder. He is a son of Mrs. J. C. Cobey and the late Dr. Cobey, of Frostburg, and a brother of W. Earle Cobey, Cumberland attorney.

Guests at the meeting, at which Fred G. Dodge, vice-president, presided in the absence of Harvey Weiss, president, included John H. Young, of Baltimore; the Rev. Dr. Harry Evaul, of Hagerstown; and Ralph Haslacker, of Cumberland.

The Rev. H. Hall Sharp announced the result of an attendance contest which closed last week and distributed prizes. The contest, staged as a war, was won by "Builwagia," whose commander-in-chief was Frederic W. Eiler. Sharp was leader of the losing nation, "Windegabbia."

Chamber Backs

committee has also been advised that letters will be forthcoming from the executives of other industrial concerns operating here on the same subject.

Considerable other work in behalf of the smoke abatement campaign was also reported, including a survey by combustion engineers and the placing of test boxes in different parts of the city by one large industrial concern to ascertain necessary facts for furthering cooperative efforts.

Weed Cutting Urged

The board adopted by unanimous vote a resolution calling upon the mayor and the city council to enforce the city ordinance requiring weekds to be cut on vacant lots and other properties. The Civic Improvement committee, noting that little, if any, attempt was being made to enforce this ordinance, declared that these uncleaned lots are breeding places for mosquitoes and rodents, and are injurious to health as well as to the appearance of the community. A fire hazard is also involved.

Approval was given no application for membership from the Nobil Shoe Company, the Cumberland Steel Company and McKaig's.

Board No. 2 Receives Call for 25 Men

Selective Service Board No. 2 has received a call for twenty-five white men to report at the Baltimore induction center on October 9, according to Emmett Fahey, chairman of the board.

Eugene Thomas Fleischhuer, who gave his home address as 419 Cumberland street, has been transferred to Board No. 2 from a Baltimore board, where he registered last week. Fleischhuer, a sailor, was at sea at the time of the national registration, July 1, and has just returned to this country, which accounts for his late registration.

Civil Service Openings Are Announced Here

Record-Breaking

democratic system of taxation is that it be based on the principle of ability to pay. Another equally important principle is that special interests should not be allowed to accumulate vast fortunes from the nation's peril. These principles have been totally disregarded by Congress in this bill.

"The Congress of Industrial Organizations has consistently advocated a real democratic system of taxation by which we could at once adequately finance our defense program and protect the welfare of the people. The CIO opposes direct federal income taxes on married couples earning less than $2,500 or on single persons earning less than $1,000 dollars. The CIO advocates the elimination of sales taxes which bear heavily on working people and propose higher taxes on corporation profits and on income of wealthy individuals. New taxes on undivided profits, tax exempt securities and inheritances have been recommended by the CIO."

Raps Profiteering

Fiske also rapped at "profiteering and revealed that the Western Maryland Industrial Union Council will hold within the next six weeks, with the co-operation of the consumers division of the Office of Price Administration, an agency of the Office of Emergency Management, "a conference for living defense" to fight profiteers. The conference, he said, will bring together labor unions, women's auxiliaries, fraternal groups, civic organizations and patriotic clubs.

The speaker also referred to negotiations now underway between Local 26 of the United Rubber Workers of America and the Kelly Springfield Tire Company and, in urging signig of a "contract guaranteeing job security," declared that "a guarantee of job security is a guarantee for business stability in this area."

SYNOPSIS

Leaving New York for Miami to marry again, HALLIE SINGLETON, a fashion model, reminisces about the time, six years before, when she was only 21 years old and had just met

ERIC ADAMS, a young would-be actor. She remembers how

SHEILA SHERMAN, a chorus girl and friend of Eric's, appeared on the scene.

CHAPTER SEVEN

IT WAS the night before her twenty-first birthday that Eric proposed to Hallie, or, as she reminded him teasingly, during their first year together—when she proposed to him. Neither had quite known the evening was going to end in a proposal. It was an evening that began gayly with the birthday dinner, and it began early because Dr. Singleton was leaving for a medical conference in Boston the next day.

At dinner there had been a mound of gifts beside Hallie's plate, and there were toasts and a birthday cake. And with great gravity, the doctor presented her with the check for $2,000 which was her inheritance from her grandfather's estate. When Hallie had accepted it with an equally grave little speech, her father kissed her and said, "What shall it be, Hallie? A new car or another trip to Europe?"

Hallie said breathlessly, "Daddy! With this I could have a trip to Europe and a car, and I could even squeeze out a new fur coat and . . ." And then her eyes met Eric's across the lighted candles and Eric's eyes were miserable.

"But I shall buy none of these things," she finished. "I shall put it in the bank. What sort of a girl am I to squander such money? I don't really want a new car or a new fur coat, and there's nothing in Europe that is as nice as what's at home. Now, let me propose a toast." . . . She made up a merry, gay little toast, but it brought no laughter to Eric. He fell into a silence that lasted long after they had left the table, and when her mother and father sat down to their evening game of backgammon, she tucked her arm in Eric's, saying, "Let's go out on the terrace, Eric."

"If you like," he said morosely.

"I do like," she said, leading the way, settling the skirts of her party frock on the wide bench. "I remember when Daddy gave me my first party frock for a birthday present." She told him a rambling anecdote about it, but he was not to be pulled out of his silence, so she said, at last, "Why are you suddenly unhappy, Eric?"

He threw a pillow at her feet and sat down upon it, sitting cross-legged, looking up at her.

"I'm sorry you saw it, Hallie. I'm not even sure of what it is. Maybe it's envy. Maybe it's self-pity, neither of which are very nice, but I'm low. You see, I'm just beginning to realize all the things I want. Most of all, I want $2,000."

Hallie felt her heart contract.

"If I had $2,000, you would not be as far away as you are."

She breathed again.

"I haven't got a bean. I haven't got a job, and I haven't any promise of one, but if you didn't have all this behind you"—a vague gesture included the house and garden and things therein—"and money of your own, I'd ask you to marry me when I get a job.

"I don't know how to put it, Hallie. I don't know how much I'm in love with you, but I've never known a girl like you. I see you here in your own home, and I imagine a home of mine with you in it."

Softly she said, "Wouldn't you say that was love, Eric?"

He took her hands in his. "I think I would," he said slowly. "Would you take a chance on a guy like me, if I had a job?"

She nodded dumbly and said shakily, "If you're proposing to me, you're engaged, Eric."

He caught her to him suddenly and there was a catch in his voice when he spoke to her. "You're not getting what you deserve, but I'll do my best, darling."

Humbly, he held her to him for a minute. Then he tilted her head back and smoothed the hair from her forehead. "You look lovely," he whispered, "lovelier than I've ever seen you."

"That's what love does to a girl. . . . Eric, shall we tell the family now?"

"Wouldn't you rather wait until I have a job? Then we can be married quietly and . . ."

"No, Eric. I want to tell them now. We can be married whenever you wish, but I want a big wedding. A girl only has one big wedding. I want bridesmaids, and rice, and music. Everything that's beautiful for the most beautiful thing that can happen to me. Come on, chin up. It won't be hard."

It wasn't hard. It was wonderful to stand there with Eric's arm proudly about her, wonderful to hear Eric say, "Sir, Mrs. Singleton, I've asked Hallie to marry me and she's . . . she's said she would. I hope . . . that it's all right with you. I should have asked you first, but . . ."

Then Dad was shaking his hand and calling him "Son." And Mother, face as white as her hair, was saying, "We want Hallie to be happy. . . . But you won't be marrying soon?"

Hallie, with her arms about her mother, answered, "Just as soon as . . . as Eric gets a job that's promised him, Mummie. But we're going to have a big wedding when we do. We must begin planning it at once."

Later, when her mother came in to find her on her knees in her dressing gown, looking out into enchanted night, she said, "Come here, Hallie."

Hallie ran to her mother's side and knelt beside her. "Mummie, before you say anything, let me tell you that I'm the happiest girl in the world."

Ann Singleton's face was sad, and there were tears in her eyes, but she said, "I didn't come to make you unhappy, child. I came to talk about the announcement of the engagement."

"Not yet, Mummie. Eric's going back to New York next week. He'll be sure . . . he'll have a job within the month, but we won't announce it until we're sure when the wedding date will be. In the meantime, we'll get my trousseau ready and be all ready. I can use some of my check. . . . Oh, Mummie, isn't it exciting?"

"Exciting," her mother said, yes. But you will not use your inheritance. You may need that. On what are you going to live?"

"Oh, Eric is sure to get a good salary," Hallie told her confidently.

"You know so little about him! You trust him so implicitely! You're so young, Hallie, and there's so much of your life before you!"

Hallie kissed her mother on the tip of her nose. "You know people just loving them, Mummie. After all, there isn't any other way unless you know their friends. We know Eric's friend, Toby, and we like him very much, don't we?"

"Yes, dear, we like Toby very much, but he's the only . . ." She didn't finish what she was going to say, for she had remembered the Sherman girl. Her face was no longer sad when she got up. It was thoughtful.

Hallie said, "I want the creamiest satin in the world, and the softest tulle, a million yards of it."

She had a gown of the creamiest satin and a veil like a baby's breath. And there were frocks of tangerine and gold and autumn's russet for the bridesmaids, for the wedding was to be in October.

Eric had a job. Eric was going into a Meyerling production. It was opening in New York on October 5, and he was to be paid $75 a week. This he telephoned when he himself was able to realize the stunning news. He would not be able to get to Worburn for the wedding rehearsal, but he would arrive late the night before the ceremony on October 2.

"It will give me a whole month to get ready," Hallie said when the news came. "I can hardly believe it."

But it was neither Hallie, nor Eric, who found it most unbelievable. Deep down in her heart, Ann Singleton had refused to believe that it would happen.

But now she knew it to be true. There was less than a month until the date now set for the wedding. But in the meantime, there were two more performances to be given by the Boswell Players in the village. And Sheila Sherman still was in Worburn.

Ann Singleton, hating the thing she was going to do, went to call on Sheila Sherman at the boarding house where she knew she lived.

When she came back, she said to her husband and her daughter, "I forbid this marriage."

Pirates Rally To Beat the Dodgers 6 to 5

Brooklyn Loses After Tying the Score in Eighth

Pittsburgh Ties Score on Balk by Casey; Pitcher and Durocher Chased

By DUKE MORAN

PITTSBURGH, Sept. 18. (AP) — The belligerence of the Brooklyn Dodgers in their battle for the National League pennant cost them a damaging 6 to 5 defeat today by the Pittsburgh Pirates.

The Durocher clan came up with another of its miraculous late-inning rallies—five priceless runs in the eighth—and then nullified this ferocious effort with an outbreak of frayed tempers, which caused Hugh Casey to throw away the game and Manager Leo (The Lip) Durocher to be chased off the field by Umpire George Magerkurth.

The whole game was the kind of a zany spectacle in which only the Dodgers ever get involved, but the eighth inning was wild beyond anyone's wildest dream.

Casey Becomes Furious

Brooklyn bashed all five of its runs across after two were out and then Luke (Hot Potato) Hamlin came in to pitch to the Pirates in the last of the eighth. The score was 5 to 4.

Vince DiMaggio led off with a single and raced to second as Ducky Medwick fumbled the ball. Immediately Hugh Casey replaced Hamlin. DiMaggio went to third on a fly by Debs Garms and was held there while Pinchhitter Maurice Van Robays grounded out.

Then trouble came in a big, nasty-tasting dose. With two strikes on Catcher Al Lopez, Casey committed a balk and Umpire Magerkurth waved DiMaggio home with the tying run.

The Dodgers were infuriated and Casey was the most furious of all —though Durocher and all his Dodgers joined in a mass protest, claiming Lopez had stepped out of the batter's box.

When order was temporarily restored, Casey hurled three consecutive wild pitches, far over the heads of Lopez, his own catcher, Mickey Owen, and the umpire.

Umpire Chases Durocher

Magerkurth, a towering, broad-shouldered man, whipped off his mask, strode out to the pitcher's mound and told Casey (he said later) that the pitcher could not "make a travesty of this ball game."

Durocher came charging right at Magerkurth's heels, protesting volubly. The fiery little manager planted himself between big, chubby Casey and the bigger umpire and for a few minutes he stood toe to toe with Magerkurth, who disclosed that the manager argued he was interfering with his pitchers and used "bitter language."

Magerkurth ordered Durocher out of the game.

Lopez, who had been the first to holler "balk" at Magerkurth, walked on the first pitch after play resumed and Alf Anderson, the weak-hitting shortstop substitute for Arky Vaughn, then connected for a triple to the extreme rightfield corner to bring home the winning run.

Sadasky Is Added To Coaching Staff at Western Maryland

WESTMINSTER, Md., Sept. 18 —A new assistant, Al Sadasky, former All-Maryland tackle, has been added to the football coaching staff at Western Maryland college.

Sadasky, who was graduated from Western Maryland in 1935, is assisting Line Coach Rip Engle. He coached high school teams in New Jersey after leaving Western Maryland.

In drills today, Head Coach Charlie Havens stressed fundamentals under game conditions. Blocking and passing were emphasized.

The Football Expert's Dilemma

"When the ways are heavy with mire and rut,"
(To borrow an Austin Dobson phrase),
"When the north wind howls and the doors are shut,"
As the forwards and backs come out to graze,
Then is the football expert curst,
Battered around by an endless blast—
For the old grad wants you to pick 'em first,
And the head coach wants you to pick 'em last.

The sobbing moans of the coaches sound
The autumn knell of a fading dream—
"Nothing but students and kids around,
We couldn't handle a high school team."
But the gray-haired grads, with a growing thirst,
Blow the bugles and beat the drums—
The old grad wants you to pick 'em first,

The Fit and Unfit

Any country, in which forty per cent of its younger men from 20 to 28 are physically unfit for service, should begin to sit up and take some notice.

Some years ago General Douglas MacArthur, then West Point's head man, told me that after his experience in the first World War, if he had his way, the United States Military Academy would be largely made up of football players. General MacArthur was sold on their physical fitness and morale under pressure — two factors which football develops.

Few will disagree with the messages already given out by leading coaches and trainers in regard to diet, sufficient sleep, and regularity.

"But what about all the minor injuries sustained in football?" someone may ask. In fact, many have.

These are minor liabilities compared to the general good that comes along. And the great majority of these can be handled. In this respect football coaches and trainers are leading the way.

Handling Injuries

Trainer Jim Cox of Harvard writes, "Probably eighty per cent of football injuries consist of joint sprains in which ligaments (tissues tying one bone to another) are stretched or torn. Though the tear may heal, the ligaments are left in a stretched condition which may take a period of a year or more to disappear. During this time the joint is weakened and is more susceptible to sprains.

"To solve this problem the training department starts special exercises as soon as possible to prevent the atrophy of muscles around the injured joint. The ideal course is to develop the muscles around the injured joint until they are bigger and stronger than they were before. This can be done under proper treatment.

"For example, a guard on our first team this year, Endicott Peabody, two years ago showed almost mechanical perfection in the play of his position but was of such slight build that he definitely lacked the strength to carry out his assignment. He was especially susceptible to neck injuries. He was given some special exercises which he continued through the summer. Last fall his increase in strength and general muscular development was typified by the increase in the circumference of his neck by a full 1¼ inches. He also had injured the tibeo-fibular collateral ligament of the knee joint. He had so developed his thighs that he was able to complete 25 deep knee bends balanced on one leg (the one with the injured knee) without touching the ground. I was watching him win a bet with some of the boys and stopped him from doing any more. The completing of one such exercise is difficult, and four or five is supposed to be quite a feat."

Leg Building

At least seventy per cent of the football trainers heard from so far wrote about the scarcity of good, strong legs. Modern boys have almost forgotten how to walk or run. They'll use a car to travel two blocks. This accounts for so many leg injuries.

"I feel that the best form of conditioning," writes Spike Nelson of Yale, "is running. There should be competitive running — for example, the tackles against the ends, the guards against the centers. Keep them running."

Tad Wieman of Princeton offers the same advice.

"There should be a mixture of walking, jogging and sprinting," the Tiger coach says. "Jogging up hill is one of the best forms of exercise. The youth of this country needs a big improvement in its leg speed and leg stamina. Walking and running are two of the finest exercises we have. Bicycling is a first-class developer. Anything to use the legs to a much greater extent."

The Softer Age

Football, basketball, baseball and track are all fine conditioners for younger men. So are tennis and golf. So is boxing. But there are too few who play these games.

The army discovered, in addition to the long list turned down for physical deficiencies of one sort or another, that it takes a long time to get many others ready for army work.

Too many have become physically soft. They have ignored the care of eyes and teeth, and the development of legs. Too many have paid little or no attention to any proper diet.

Even football coaches and trainers have to keep hard on the heels of many football candidates through the summer months to see that they report at least in fair shape. I know of five highly-touted stars from last year who reported from twenty to thirty pounds overweight. And football has the best conditioned crop of the lot.

A Good Suggestion

Here is a tip to the War Department. Why not give a button or a badge of some sort to those who tried to enlist and were turned down?

"I've tried to get in the air force, navy and army," a well-known athlete writes. "I was turned down on account of eye trouble. Yet I have the feeling that many people, looking at a twenty-three-year-old athlete, wonder why I'm not in the service. I'd give anything to get in, but I can't go around explaining my trouble. Couldn't the War Department give us, who couldn't make it, something to wear that would prove at least our hearts were in the right place? It might help to lift our heads a little higher, anyway."

Why not? — North American Newspaper Alliance.

Washington College Begins Practice

CHESTERTOWN, Md., Sept. 18—(AP)—The smallest squad in years, only twenty-two men, reported to Coach George L. Ekaitis today for the first football practice of the season at Washington college.

Ekaitis said seventeen of the twenty-two were members of last year's squad but added he did not expect many other candidates to report when classes begin Monday.

The seventeen men back from last year are Dudderer and Slade, centers; Kirby, Gibe and Daugherty, guards; Sinclair, Reidy, W. C. Benjamin and Steele, tackles; W. A. Benjamin and Warner, ends; Yerkes, Macielag, Hoban, Jackson, Messick and Morgan, backs.

The schedule:

Keyser High Will Meet Alumni This Afternoon

First Game of 1941 Season Will Get Under Way at 2:15 o'Clock

The Keyser high school football team will play its first game of the 1941 season this afternoon at 2:15 o'clock when the Shelton coached aggregation will meet an Alumni team on the Potomac State Field.

This will be the first meeting of a Keyser high school and an alumni team since 1935 and the former players are certain to give the high school boys a real test. Coach John Shelton while not optimistic about the chances for the present season thinks the 1941 team will show a decided improvement over the team which lost eight consecutive games last year.

Ends Broome, Bright, and Stalnaker are fighting hard for starting positions. Davis and Brill, veteran tackles, are being pushed hard by a senior newcomer, Bob Logan. At the guard posts, Iser, a 1940 regular, along with Harry Rogers and Lionel Martin, also holdovers, are waging a fine fight to make the first team. A brilliant newcomer, Arnold Ludwick, a senior, is also making a bid for the guard position. At center, Dixon, Shallis, Householder, and Coffman are putting up a battle for the starting post.

In the backfield, Dorsey, Davy, Cessare, Wolfe, Staggers, and Wilson are fighting for places. Some of the promising newcomers are Clevenger, Mott, Conroy, Hines, Hampton, W. Hartman, and Athey.

Alumni gridders are anxious to play and promise the high school team it will see plenty of football. The Alumni line will be comprised of such former stars as "Red" Fromhart, Delmar Burns, Elmer Huffman, and "Snookie" Amtower.

Other Alumni players will be Fred Rohe, Leroy Bishop, Basil Martin, Ed Kelley, Don Taylor, Forest Davis, and Charley Coco, all of whom will play on the Alumni team's line. In the backfield will be fleet Bill Fortney, Bob Kight, "Lefty" Rice, Ray Stafford, Lloyd Baures, and Bud Mosser. This array of former stars promises to be a tough opening foe for the new Keyser Hi eleven.

New 'Capital' Lanes Open in South End

Some of the pressure has been taken off the bowling alley situation in Cumberland with the opening this week of the new "Capital Alleys" at 510 Virginia avenue.

Despite the opening more than a year ago of the Roxy Bowling Centre and Grant's Silver Lanes at Cresaptown the number of bowlers far exceeded the supply of drives, and the 1940-41 season found old and new establishments in the entire section doing a land-office business.

It's expected that the eight new maple lanes in the South End sector will help meet the demand for more alleys and prove a popular spot, especially since the establishment is managed by Roy "Bunny" Hare, who has a large following in duckpin circles. Y. W. King is the owner of the "Capital" layout.

Wednesday night's opening drew an overflow crowd with men and women receiving favors, and the alleys were kept busy throughout yesterday. Several leagues have already made arrangements to roll matches at the "Capital" this season, and Manager Hare indicated today that open periods are becoming scarce.

Roman Wins Feature At Belmont Park

NEW YORK, Sept. 18. (AP)—Belmont Park opened its fifteen-day fall season with J. E. Widener's four-year old Roman scampering home in front of eight other high ranking sprinters in the twenty-eighth fall High Weight Handicap.

The son of Sir Gallahad III was asked to pick up top weight of 140 pounds and give as much as 38 to his rivals, but the package apparently felt like a feather, for the bay colt won by one and one-half lengths in track record equalling time of 1:10 for six furlongs. Speed to spare, B. A. Neale's fast but faint-hearted eight-year old Gelding, was second, a half-length in front of Maxwell Howard's The Chief.

Roman returned $19.90 for a $2 win ticket, $10.10 to place and $7.40 to show.

Thomas High Will Open Football Season Today

Team Will Travel to Charles Town, W. Va., To Start Campaign

THOMAS, W. Va., Sept. 18—The Thomas high school football team will travel to Charles Town, W. Va., tomorrow for the opening of the 1941 football season meeting the Charles Town Panthers in a game which is expected to be a severe test for the Thomas players.

Thomas has been practicing only two weeks and several of last year's outstanding players are missing from the squad. Coach Emil Suder reports that the 1941 squad is small with only seven lettermen back.

The 1941 schedule, in addition to the opener tomorrow with Charles Town, lists Petersburg away Sept. 26, Moorefield here October 3, Parsons away October 10, Rowlesburg here (pending) October 17, and Keyser away October 24.

As Charles Town has already opened its season with a 25-0 victory over Parsons, it's very apparent that the Suder-coached team faces a tough assignment in meeting the Panthers.

Mentor Suder says that his backfield of Edward Mitchlich, Vicky Mazitis, Riggie Genantonio and Paul Maniscarco shapes up well, but that there is room for great improvement along the line.

Lettermen back this year are Mazitis, 150; Videl Tonelli, 180; Mitchlich, 160; Genantonio, 122; Bob Luzier, 165; Jimmy Delittoso, 162; and Maniscarco, 152. Luzier and Mitchlich are three-year men. Other holdovers are Dorwood Ford, 128; Sam Saluta, 160; John Borsnicw, 148; Jack Nutter, 152; Richard Evens, 155.

LaSalle Plays Moorefield High Here Tonight

Teams Will Clash At 8 o'Clock in Fort Hill Stadium

Conway Names Starting Lineup after Practice Session at Park

Cumberland's 1941 scholastic football season will be ushered in tonight at 8 o'clock when coach Pat Conway's LaSalle Explorers lift the lid by meeting Coach Fred "Tack Clark's Moorefield (W. Va.) Yellow Jackets at the Fort Hill stadium.

The Blue and Gold squad is shaping up nicely for the opening engagment. It will also be the first test for Moorefield. Clark, Yellow Jacket mentor, is a former Allegany high athlete and has many friends in this vicinity. He will be making his first appearance here as a football coach, having tutored the Jackets last season for the first time.

Starting Lineup Named

Conway put his team through a long workout yesterday at Community park in preparation for the game and after the practice session was over nominated the following starting lineup:

Position	Player	Weight
L.E.	Ford	137
C.	Morrissey	170
R.G.	Warzack	142
R.T.	Houck	190
R.E.	Small	157
Q.B.	Minke	160
L.H.B.	Geatz	140
R.H.B.	Seefeld	138
F.B.	Mullan	150

The line will average about 161 pounds, the backfield 147 and the entire team approximately 156 pounds.

Conway said last night that D. Palmer, a regular last year will not be able to play due to a knee injury and that Robert Brooks, a regular last year is ineligible to play due to scholastic difficulties. Ford who will start at left end will replace the injured Shaffer and this is his first year on the squad. Cessna at left guard is a freshman.

The officials for the game will be, Cavanaugh, referee; Blough, umpire and Staley, head linesman.

Moorefield Loses Captain

Moorefield lost Captain Courtney Burch, guard; Carl Riel, quarterback; Charles Bean, end and leading scorer in the Potomac Valley Conference last fall; "Boots" Salan and Grover Charlton, halfbacks, and Loring Bowman, center, all of the 1940 eleven, by graduation. Bill Zundel, a guard, has moved to Pittsburgh.

Outstanding holdovers are Warren Hott, fullback; Robert Hahn, end; Dan Poling, tackle, and Curtis Fawley, guard last year who has been shifted to the blocking back position.

Other capable holdovers certain to see service tonight are Bob McNeill, second-string center last season; Bill, Grover and Eugene Hahn, reserve guards in 1940; "Rocky" Raines, shifted from guard to end; "Slim" Pratt, guard, and Earl Southerly and "Sonny" Kuykendall, a pair of tackles.

Firing on the local front will be continued tomorrow with the Fort Hill Sentinels meeting Charlotte Hall Military Academy in the afternoon and Allegany opening its season against the St. Francis Catholic high Trojans of Morgantown, W. Va., in a night tussle. Both games will be staged at the Fort Hill stadium.

Coach Bill Hahn's Ridgeley eleven will usher in the fall sport by tangling with Piedmont at Ridgeley this afternoon while in other district contests tomorrow, Greenbank and Romney will meet at Romney, Berkeley Springs will invade Winchester, Va., to oppose the Handley Judges and the Potomac State Catamounts of Keyser, W. Va., will go to Emmitsburg to battle Mount St. Mary's.

W. VA. COLLEGE GRID TEAMS READY FOR IMPORTANT GAMES

By DICK BOYD

Headlined by a clash worthy of a better spot on the calendar—Wesbatter spot on the calendar—Wesleyan-Morris Harvey at Charleston, Saturday—five more elevens join with Davis Elkins this week-end in the prelude to the 1941 West Virginia college pigskin program.

Davis Elkins, jolted in the Hurricane's first start under Coach Fred Dickerson, will try again against Moravian at Bethlehem, Pa., tonight (Friday). The Elkins lads were thrashed, 33-7, last week by Catawba, in Dickerson's first return to his native North Carolina.

Other games, all on Saturday, include Marshall's pow-pow with the Indians of Omaha university under the lights at Huntington; Concord vs. King at Bristol, Tenn., and the Potomac Catamounts' run-in with Mount St. Marys, at Emmitsburg, Md.

Morris Harvey "whipped" the Methodists, 15-0, last year in a game marked by fisticuffs, something not at all in keeping with what might be expected from teams representing church schools of the same denomination, and the Rossmen are out to even the score.

Wesleyan appears to hold the upper hand for the first time in this rivalry, which dates back to 1938; but from any vantage point the clash shapes up as a natural, the outcome of which will knock one or the other out of the West Virginia conference race.

Potomac State Will Open 1941 Season Saturday

Catamounts Will Play First Game with Mt. St. Mary's at Emmitsburg

BY DICK BOYD

Keyser, W. Va., Sept. 18. (AP)—At Potomac State School of West Virginia University, Coach Dana "Horse" Lough has the consolation of knowing that whether his football team wins or loses the Catamounts will be playing out of their own class.

This is because Potomac, a two-year, junior college competes with and asks no quarter from colleges where third and fourth-year men are available for gridiron duty.

Because Lough never has anything more than comparatively green material, Potomac football follows a familiar pattern, with the Catamounts generally showing increased strength as the season progresses.

Last season, after going touchdown-less through four games, they held Mt. St. Mary's and Glenville to six points each, were trounced by Concord, then came back to run berserk against Shepherd and in the final game to hold the West Virginia conference champion, West Liberty, to 18 points.

Ten Lettermen Back

Then came graduation, removing Starford, Kight and Burns — all good men. Leon and Paulin transferred to the University, and Pownall, another dependable, left to prepare for Annapolis.

These sound like heavy losses, but they're not out of the ordinary at Potomac. Lough has 10 lettermen among his squad of 33, which has been working out since Sept. 1, making ready for the first game of the season, with Mt. St. Mary's at Emmitsburg, Md., this Saturday.

These include Jack O'Neil, a center; the guards and tackles Virge Barr, Joe Emch, Ike Mullett, John Manchion and Duane Post; a pair of ends in Carroll (Schoolboy) Rowe and "Hump" Wherley, and Backs Billy Howard and Mike Yewcic.

Yoden on Squad

However, Lough has found among his first year men four backs who can pass, kick and run like old timers. They include Stanley Szafron of Benwood, Bob Proudfoot of Clarksburg, Jim Cox of Elkins, and Frank Hawrylak, of West Orange, N. J. The last is one of only four non-West Virginians on the squad, the others being Yewcic, Wherley, and Bill Yoder, a first-year man and a back, from Cumberland, Md.

After Mt. St. Mary's, the Cats play Glenville at Glenville Sept. 27, Waynesburg at Waynesburg Oct. 4, Concord here Oct. 11, California, Pa., Teachers at California, Oct. 18, Shepherd at Shepherdstown Oct. 25, West Virginia Tech at Keyser, Nov. 1, Ithaca at Ithaca, N. Y., Nov. 8, and West Liberty here Nov. 15.

BLUE RIDGE COLLEGE TO MEET LA SALLE IN PHILADELPHIA

NEW WINDSOR, Md., Sept. 18 (AP)—Head Coach Sylvester Pauxtis announced today that Blue Ridge college would meet La Salle in Philadelphia October 4 in football.

La Salle will replace Swarthmore, which cancelled its game with Blue Ridge because of prevalence of poliomyelitis forcing postponement of the college opening and football practice.

The Vultures went through light drill today, tapering off for their trek to Pennsylvania where they will open the season in reading tomorrow night against Albright.

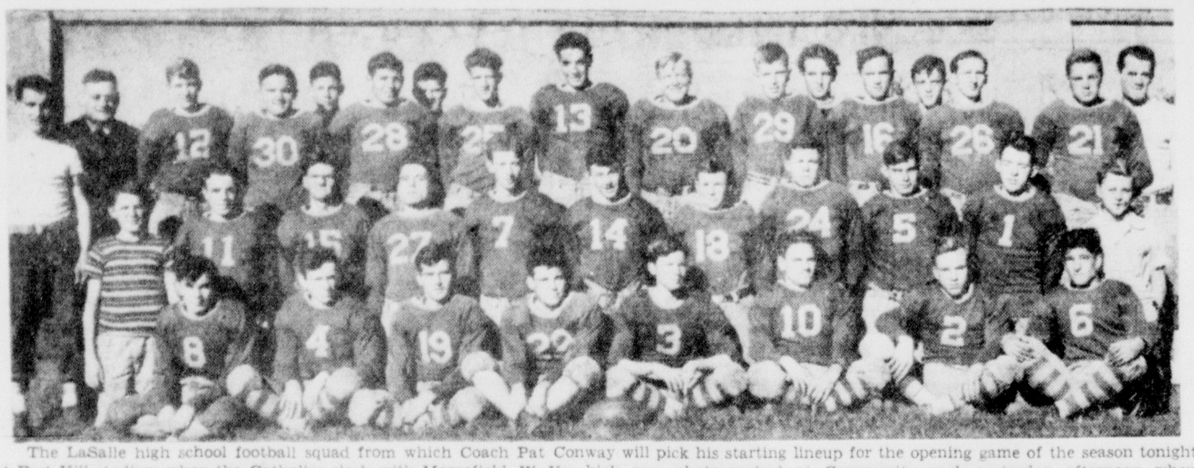

Pauxtis has brought his small squad along rapidly and thus far injuries have not hampered efforts to develop a smooth-working offense. Reserves, though scarce, are considered capable.

Reserves expected to see action include: Ercell (Cris) Dove and Pete Richardson from Salisbury in the line, and Gene McGill of Cumberland.

Blue Ridge will not change its general style of play this year, retaining the Warner single wingback system, with spinners, spread formations and some running and passing from short punt formations to vary the attack the squad includes twenty players, eight veterans from 1940.

WILL OPEN 1941 SEASON HERE TONIGHT

The LaSalle high school football squad from which Coach Pat Conway will pick his starting lineup for the opening game of the season tonight at Fort Hill stadium when the Catholics clash with Moorefield, W. Va., high was photographed at Community park yesterday afternoon when Conway took time out from practice to have the boys pose for a picture. Those in the picture are — FIRST ROW (left to right) Francis Passarelli, Tommy Ford, Jim Laffey, Phil Minke, Robert Seefeld, Elmer Cessna, Bill Nelson and Joe Arnone. SECOND ROW — Jim Shaffer, Henry Natale, Bill Harvey, Herb Wartzack, Bill Jenkins, Harry Ways, Fred Burkey, Joe Carter, Charles Dodrill, George Hughes and Michael McGeady. THIRD ROW — Vic Malloy, (aide to Coach Conway), Brother Eugene (principal of LaSalle), Norman Geatz, Anthony Houck, Tom Seifert, Joe Divico, Francis Mattingley, George Geatz, John Small, John Morrisey, Francis Eberly, Jim Fahey, Tom Byrnes, Earl Conn, Francis Mullan, Ronald Palmer and Coach Pat Conway.

Sale of Tickets For Louis-Nova Fight Is Good

Jacobs Expects Gate Will Be between $500,000 and $750,000

NEW YORK, Sept. 18 (AP)—Uncle Mike Jacobs' ticket office these days is a quiet little place, as cozy as the Times Square subway station around 5 p. m., which is no place for a man with a nervous breakdown.

The advance sale for the Joe Louis-Lou Nova tea party in the Polo Grounds a week from next Monday is even pleasing Mike, which is quite an accomplishment. Jacobs' ticket office reports there is more than $200,000 in ticket orders in the till already, and Uncle Sam's mailmen are groaning under new bags full at every delivery. Orders from forty-five states have been received, with the Montana, Arizona and Arkansas precincts still to report.

Large Crowd Expected

This means that there are a lot of folks going to sit in on the proceedings, and with the latest betting developments showing new support for Louis the Yogi, his cosmic punch, his dynamic stance and his two left feet, there are going to be more boys and girls step up to the box office with ready money all the time.

The charitable bookmakers, always willing to give you two fives for a twenty, sliced the price today down to just 1 over 2 in Louis' favor. If you like Joe, you lay 5 to 11. If you think Nova's going to end Fistiana's biggest heavyweight reign, they'll give you 9 to 5. Off these odds, Nova apparently is rated the best chance of any of the many challengers who've stepped up for a sample of the Bomber's brand of ether.

To Mike, who has grown somewhat conservative in his estimates since a couple of them up and backfired right between his eyes, all this adds up to a gate more than $500,000, with $750,000 not impossible.

What Mike would like to see now are some ticket sales in the three states he's missing. He would like to break the record he made for the second Louis-Max Schmeling shindig, when the faithful in forty-seven of the forty-eight states sent their orders along. Mike is strictly a geographical guy when it comes to counting up the take.

Duke Rates Tops in South, With Plenty of Competition

By BARTON PATTIE

SOUTHERN'S TOP TEAM: The deep blue of Duke is the dominating hue no matter which way the Southern conference football picture is twisted for a pre-season peek.

Coach Wallace Wade's Blue Devils went down twice last year—bowing out of the battle for bowl bids with a 0-13 shelling by Tennessee and slipping from the conference race with a stinging 3-6 defeat administered by an in-and-out North Carolina club.

The Dukes, not yet weakened by the draft and hit comparatively easy by graduation, will be pointing for these two foes this fall—both to be played in Durham—and Duke supporters are confident it will be a different story.

BIG THREE: Duke, Clemson and North Carolina.

Outside of the loop Clemson, 1940 champs, must topple such squads as Boston College and Auburn to earn national recognition, while North Carolina, considered weakened by the graduation loss of All-American Paul Severin at end and tailback Jim Lalanne, has Fordham and Tulane on its intersectional docket.

Wake Forest and Furman also are due to be strong. George Washington will be making its debut as a conference member but hardly is expected to make a serious title bid.

NO. 1 STAR: The chances are that Steve Lach, Duke's 190-pound all-conference back, and Joe Blalock, Clemson 6-foot-2 end, twice all-Southern choice, will be the standout stars of the circuit.

The loop's best bet for an undefeated team seems to be Duke. But even if the Blue Devils manage to hurdle Tennessee and North Carolina, it will be a bettering assignment to repeat last year's triumphs over such rivals as Georgia Tech, Colgate, Pitt, Wake Forest and North Carolina State.

STEVE LACH

Certain to shine for Duke

DARK-HORSE TEAM: The team likely to kick up real dust is William and Mary, where Carl Voyles, formerly Wade's right hand man at Duke, is in his third year as head man. The W. & M. Indians, tripped but twice last year and winner of the Virginia state championship for the first time, will be much tougher this time.

The draft scare has about blown over in the conference since expected losses did not materialize. Only a half dozen or so players who might have been starters are gone and few others appear to be in danger of an early call by Uncle Sam.

Reds Take Two Games from Phils

CINCINNATI, Sept. 18 (AP)—The Cincinnati Reds banged shut the season's book on Philadelphia with a double win today and a sweep of the four-game series, 5 to 0 and 9 to 0.

It fell to Ray Starr, veteran Minor Leaguer just up from Indianapolis to administer the white-wash-opener. He scattered eight hits, only two good for as far as second and no more than two in any frame.

The second game found the Reds registering a run in the first on two singles and an outfield fly, three more in the third on Frank McCormick's fifteenth circuit clout, a pair in the sixth, one in the seventh and a final brace in the eighth.

The Phils bowed to the Reds 16 of 22 times this season.

Bob Feller Wins Twenty-fourth Game of Season

Snaps Eight Game Winning Streak of the Boston Red Sox

BOSTON, Sept. 18 (AP)—Bob Feller marked up his twenty-fourth victory of the season today, snapping a Boston Red Sox victory string which had run to eight games as his Cleveland Indians battered three Boston pitchers for a 6-1 decision.

Jeff Heath put the game into Cleveland's victory book in the opening inning when he lofted a Dick Newsome serve into the right field stands with two mates aboard.

Senators Stop Brown's Rally

WASHINGTON, Sept. 18 (AP)—The Washington Senators defeated St. Louis, 9 to 8, today after halting a four-hit rally that produced a pair of Brown tallies in the ninth.

Walter Masterson, Washington's third hurler, struck out pinch-hitter John Lucadello with runners on first and third to end the contest.

Ridgeley Will Play Piedmont

Ridgeley high school will open the 1941 football season this afternoon meeting Piedmont high at Ridgeley improved athletic field at 3:30 o'clock.

Coach Bill Hahn has been working hard with the Ridgeley team for several weeks and believes his boys are ready for the initial contest of the season. He has found it necessary to make some changes in order to replace regulars of the 1940 team who were lost by graduation.

He has shifted Thomas, the regular center last season, to the fullback position and has placed Bennett at halfback instead of the end position he played last year.

Ridgeley will probably line up with Hartman and Barncord at ends; James Lindsay and Logsdon at tackles; Bean Spriggs, Snyder or Largent at the guards; Arrington or Bob Lindsay at center; Washabaugh, Jim Thomas, Bill Bennet and either Adams, Shannon, Maiers, Phillips or Thompson in the backfield.

The line will average around 160 pounds and the backfield about 140 pounds.

Officials for the game will be Bobby Cavanaugh, Johnny Blough and "Huck" Miers.

Penn-Mar League Play-off Series Starts Sunday

Old Germans and Mt. Savage Will Clash at North End Field

The play-off series to determine the championship of the Penn-Mar Baseball League will get under way here Sunday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock at the North End Playground when the Old Germans and Mt. Savage will clash in the first game of the series.

Final arrangements were made for the series at a meeting held last night at the Central Y.M.C.A. with George Layman presiding as acting chairman. The series will be for the best two out of three games.

The series will be played on a home and home basis with the second game scheduled for Mt. Savage Sunday, Sept. 28 and if a third game is necessary the place will be decided by a toss of a coin.

Layman awarded the first game to the home grounds of the Old Germans due to the Cumberland team finishing in first place during the regular playing season.

The Old Germans defeated Wellersburg two straight and Mt. Savage eliminated Centerville in two straight games in the preliminary playoffs.

The umpires for the game here Sunday will be Andy Dunn behind the plate and Ray Middleton on the bases. Both umpires are from Frostburg. The umpires for the second game at Mt. Savage will be Carl Cook, of Ridgeley behind the plate and Bobby Cavanaugh of Cumberland on the bases.

All four umpires selected to handle the series were members of the Bi-State League umpiring staff the past season and the manager of the Old Germans and Mt. Savage both praised their work as highly satisfactory.

The Old Germans were represented at the meeting by Charles Doyle, manager; Orville Young and Earl Sellers while Mt. Savage was represented by Howard Northcraft, manager; Frank Rizer and Ralph Dickle.

St. Louis Drops Game to Boston 4 to 1

Cardinals Blow Opportunity To Gain on Leaders

Manuel Salvo Holds St. Louis Sluggers to Six Safe Hits

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 18 (AP)—Opportunity pounded on the Cardinals' door today—almost broke it down, in fact—but they couldn't answer with those hits and lost a golden chance to take over the lead in the National League race.

Caught tight in a batting slump, the Redbirds managed only six safeties off Manuel Salvo, heretofore a mediocre pitcher, and lost to the pecky Boston Braves, 4 to 1.

Meanwhile, the Pittsburgh Pirates had tumbled the league-leading Brooklyn Dodgers, 6 to 5, and were holding them on the ground, an easy victim for the Cardinals.

A good stout bat or two would have done the trick easy, but the Cardinals had holes in the ones they were waving at Salvo. It's been that way for more than two weeks, making it a wonder the Cardinals have been able to stay up in the race. They have scored only forty-six runs in their last sixteen games, an average of less than three tallies a game, and their batting average over that stretch has been .200.

Against Salvo, the Cardinals put together Estel Crabtree's triple and Marty Marion's single for a run in the second inning, but Stan Musial's single and Johnny Mize's double just meant two men left on base in the third. The remaining two hits—singles by Jimmy Brown and Gus Mancuso — were wasted in double plays.

Morton Cooper, who throws a speed ball and a sharp curve, could have made a battle of it except for his home run pitch. He served one to Frank Demaree after two Boston singles in the opening inning. Frank's drive was his only hit of the game.

Gene Moore's home run in the sixth inning was just so much more black crepe for the Cardinals.

Boston was the last Eastern club on the St. Louis schedule this season and Pittsburgh was the last stop on Brooklyn's final Western trip, the [illegible] now tackle the tough Chicago and Pittsburgh Brooklyn finds supposed pickings with Philadelphia and the Braves.

Grace Methodist Win Series from Trinity Outfit

Take Second Consecutive Game in South End Loop 11 to 8

The Grace Methodist church softball team won the preliminary series in the South Cumberland Sunday School League from Trinity in straight games by taking its second consecutive game yesterday by a score of 11 to 8 and won the right to meet the United Brethren team for the championship.

Decker started for Grace but could not protect a two run lead his team gave him in the first inning and was driven from the mound in the second inning when Trinity scored five times to take a three run lead.

Randall relieved Decker in the third and pitched five hit ball, did not issue a pass or allow an extra base hit the remainder of the game. Stevenson batted in four runs for the winners. Stevenson, Keller and Leith had seven of the eight hits made by Grace. Watson made three hits for Trinity.

After Trinity took a three run lead in the second, Grace scored one in the third but Trinity came back with a run in its half. Grace added two more in the first of the fourth, but Trinity made three runs in the last of the fifth to take a 9 to 5 lead. Trinity could not stay out in front and Grace tied the score with a four run rally in the sixth and won the game with two runs in the seventh.

Watson Joins Owls As Line Coach

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 19—Bill Watson, regular Owl tackle in 1939 and in 1940 until he broke a leg, today joined the Temple forces as line coach. The Owls returned to practice here after a two-hour scrimmage with Lehigh at Bethlehem.

Baseball Cream

The sixteen teams competing in the amateur world series at Battle Creek, Mich., Sept. 20-28, will have come from more than 2,000 leagues. Toughest road was that of Springfield, Mass., champion of more than 1,300 teams. Lightest competition was that in the Delta district where a New Orleans team "only" had to come out on top of 150 teams.

MORTGAGEE'S SALE OF VALUABLE IMPROVED PROPERTY IN CUMBERLAND, MARYLAND

Under and by virtue of the power of sale contained in a mortgage from Jesse E. Ott and Mary F. Ott, his wife, dated February 5th, 1930, and recorded in Mortgage Liber No. 114, folio 128, among the Mortgage Records of Allegany County, Maryland, (default having occurred in the covenants and conditions of said mortgage) the undersigned, to whom said mortgage has been assigned for purpose of foreclosure, and under the power of sale contained in said mortgage, will on SATURDAY, OCTOBER 4th, 1941,
At 10:00 A. M., on Liberty Street, in Cumberland, Maryland, beside the Second National Bank, sell to the highest bidder:—
All that lot or parcel of ground situated on the westerly side of Springdale Street, in the City of Cumberland, Allegany County, Maryland, comprising parts of Lots Numbers 19 and 20, as shown on the plat of Shriver's Addition to Cumberland, recorded in Liber No. 76, folio 687, of the Land Records of Allegany County, and described as follows, to wit:
Beginning for the same on the westerly side of Springdale Street at a point distant South two and one-third degrees West eighty-two feet from the intersection of the westerly side of Springdale Street with the southerly side of Third Street and running thence with the westerly side of Springdale Street, South twenty and one-third degrees West fifteen feet, then still with said Street South thirty-four and three-fourths degrees West eight feet, then parallel with Claiborne Street North sixty-seven and three-fourths degrees West one hundred three and one-half feet, then North nineteen degrees East twenty-two and eight-tenths feet to intersect a line drawn North sixty-seven degrees and forty-five minutes West from the place of beginning, then South sixty-seven degrees and forty-five minutes East one hundred six feet to the place of beginning, it being the same property conveyed to the said Jesse E. Ott and wife by Mary Ellen More by deed dated June 6, 1934, and recorded in Liber No. 147, folio 281, of the Land Records of Allegany County.
SAID PROPERTY IS IMPROVED BY A TWO STORY FIVE ROOM FRAME DWELLING, WITH COMPOSITION ROOF, WHICH IS KNOWN AS NO. 309 SPRINGDALE STREET, AND WHICH IS EQUIPPED WITH WATER, GAS AND ELECTRIC, FRONT AND REAR PORCHES, AND A WATER CLOSET. THERE IS ALSO A ONE CAR GARAGE IN THE REAR OF SAID LOT.
TERMS OF SALE: Three Hundred Dollars ($300.00) cash on day of sale, balance upon ratification of sale by the Court.
All State, County and Municipal Taxes and Water Rents for the calendar year shall be adjusted as of the day of sale.

The object of this suit is to procure a divorce a vinculo matrimonii divorcing the plaintiff from the defendant.
The bill states that the parties were married at Bedford, Pennsylvania, on February 18th, 1915; that eight children were born to the parties, namely, Francis Edmond Lybarger, Vera Lybarger Foster, Mildred Lybarger Foster, George S. Lybarger, Jr., Joseph Lybarger, Mary Lybarger, Ruth Lybarger and Rose Lybarger; that the defendant, without just cause or reason, deserted and abandoned the plaintiff and declared her intention to live with him no longer; that said abandonment has continued uninterruptedly for over three years and is deliberate and final, and that the separation of the parties is beyond any reasonable expectation of reconciliation; that the plaintiff has resided in Allegany County, Maryland, for over two years last past, while the defendant is a non-resident of the State of Maryland.
It is, therefore, this 27th day of August, 1941, ordered by the Circuit Court for Allegany County, in Equity, that the plaintiff, by causing a copy of this order to be inserted in some newspaper published in Allegany County, once a week for four successive weeks before the 29th day of September, 1941, give notice to the absent defendant of the object and substance of this bill, and warning her to be and appear in this Court, in person or by solicitor, on or before the 15th day of October, 1941, to show cause why a decree should not be passed as prayed.

Chamber Backs Triplex Campaign Of Local Groups

Legislative Material, Tax Improvement and Economy Sought

In submitting a report of its activities to the directors of the chamber of commerce last night, the chamber Legislative committee noted that it was co-operating with several local groups in the advocacy of three objectives, namely:

1. To find ways and means of inducing men of experience to seek election to the state legislature in 1942.
2. To encourage and aid the local and state taxpayers' organizations.
3. To do whatever is possible to urge the federal government to curtail non-defense expenditures.

In connection with the last named objective, the Legislative committee reported that it had expressed its views on the subject to the Maryland delegation in the House of Representatives and to both of the senators. Senators Radcliffe and Tydings, and Representatives Meyer, Ward and Sasscer acknowledged letters, expressed approval of the objective and promised to work for the Byrd amendment and action by the committee which it provides.

Follow Up Action Urged

In reporting its recent conference with Governor O'Conor regarding needed road improvements in this county, as well as prior conferences with the state roads commission, the Good Roads committee urged that the promise to help bring about early action be followed up by chamber members as individuals and as groups. Several groups, it reported, had already arranged to visit the commission. The county commissioners expect to visit the board September 24; William Jenkins, of Frostburg, will take a group from Frostburg to visit the commission in the near future and a like visit is also to be made by Bernard Burns and others of Eckhart.

In this connection it was noted that the West Virginia State Road Commission would meet this week at Keyser to further joint action with the Maryland State Roads Commission regarding the counstruction of the proposed bridge across the Potomac at Keyser.

Airport Group Disturbed

The Airport committee reported the result of the visit by the mayor and city council and members of the committee with Maj. Harry W. Williar, Jr., regional W.P.A. director, early this month in Baltimore. It expressed itself as being quite disturbed over the failure of the city to file specifications of a third project for completion of runways 2, 3 and 4 at the local airport.

In connection with a report of its activities by the Civic Improvement committee, it was brought out that letters pledging co-operation in the smoke abatement campaign had been received by the committee by officials of the Western Maryland and the Cumberland and Pennsylvania railroads. The STATE CHAIRMAN — John R. Kelly, commander of Fort Cumberland Post No. 13, has been appointed disaster relief chairman of the Maryland Department, American Legion, on the recommendation of Roy S. Pyle, state commander. Kelly also has been named as a member of the graves registration committee of the state department. He has served as local chairman of the latter committee for the past eight years.

Cumberland May Land 1942 Legion State Convention

Hotel Men and Chamber of Commerce To Confer with Legionnaires

Local hotel men and the Cumberland Chamber of Commerce have made overtures to the Maryland Department of the American Legion to have Cumberland selected as the site for the twenty-fourth annual state convention in August, 1942, it was learned yesterday.

The matter will be discussed thoroughly next Tuesday evening at a conference of local hotel managers and officials of Fort Cumberland Post No 13, at the American Legion home, Harrison street

Roy S Pyle, of Havre de Grace, Maryland Department commander, regards Cumberland as the logical site for the convention as a result of the successful annual meeting held by the legionnaires in 1940.

No Bids Received

At the 1941 convention held in Baltimore last month, no bids were received for next year's meeting, and immediately delegates began talking up Cumberland for the big meeting in spite of the fact that this city was host only a year ago.

One of the first steps that Cumberland must take is to assure adequate housing conditions. In fact, the accommodations must be an improvement over those of 1940 to satisfy members of the local post.

Hotels were not organized well enough to house approximately 2,500 visitors here last year but the interest shown by hotel managers in recent weeks indicates that everything is being done to assure the state department that the visitors will be well taken care of if Cumberland is selected as the convention site.

Termed Logical Site

Department officers point out that Baltimore, Cumberland and Hagerstown are the logical cities in which to stage the convention. In fact, they declare that Hagerstown and Cumberland are better than Baltimore because a convention carries more interest in a smaller place and is usually "lost" in a city the size of Baltimore.

The sum of $1,500 must be guaranteed as prizes for drum corps, bands, etc., at a Legion convention and the local American Legion post is not jumping at anything unless it is assured the wholehearted support of local business firms who benefit financially from an event such as is staged annually by the ex-servicemen of Maryland. Additional support is required in the solicitation of funds for the program, which helps defray the costs of the convention.

Seek August Date

If Cumberland's bid is accepted the convention will be held the week following the Cumberland Fair Association's race meeting in August. Dates for the four-day convention, which opens on a Wednesday, will be announced following the approval of dates for the annual ten-day race meeting.

The 1940 Legion convention here was regarded as the biggest and best held in the state in many years. Vincent P. Ingram served as general chairman of last year's event.

State officers report that $130 was cleared over expenses at the state convention in Baltimore last month.

Demurrers Are Filed against Insurance Head

Local Men To Fight Suits Brought To Collect Assessments

Demurrers to two of the suits brought against Cumberland citizens by Matthew H. Taggart, insurance commissioner of Pennsylvania and liquidator of the Keystone Indemnity Exchange of Philadelphia, which failed during the depression, were filed yesterday in circuit court.

The suits were brought to collect assessments levied against the policy-holders of the firm, which was a reciprocal company, to meet its obligations.

Attack Declarations

The demurrers were filed yesterday by Clarence Lippel, attorney, on behalf of H. C. Buckingham and Arthur J. Weber. They ask dismissal of the suits on the ground that the declarations are "not sufficient in law."

The basis for the demurrers was not elaborated in the papers filed in court, but it was understood that they rely on a law passed by the 1941 legislature of Maryland limiting the period during which such suits may be brought.

"No action or court preceeding," says the law, "shall be brought against a subscriber, policy-holder or contract-holder of a domestic or foreign reciprocal or inter-insurer for the purpose of enforcing an assessment later than one year after the termination of such subscriber's policy of contract unless said subscriber, policy-holder or contract-holder shall have been notified of such assessment within one year after the termination of his policy or contract."

Assessments Levied in 1938

The concern became insolvent in 1933, and the assessments were levied September 12, 1938.

Maryland's insurance commissioner, John B. Gontrum, has advised Maryland residents not to pay the assessments. It is estimated that there are nearly 5,000 Maryland citizens affected by thme litigation.

Burglar Alarm Goes Off at Fur Shop; No Reason Found

The burglar alarm of Green's Fur Shop, 37 Baltimore street, competed with the Northern Lights for public attention last evening.

Officers Harold P. Kennard and George W. Deffinbaugh, who were on Baltimore street when the alarm was set off at 8:35 o'clock investigated and could find no cause for alarm.

Alex Z. Green, when called by Officer Kennard could not be located and did not arrive at the store until 8:55 o'clock. The bell, in the while, rang steadily.

A thorough search of the premises disclosed that everything was in order.

Green stated that the cause of the alarm was undoubtedly a loose connection in the wiring system.

Kelly Named Head Of State Legion Disaster Relief

Local Leader also Appointed to Graves Registration Committee

John R. Kelly, commander of Fort Cumberland Post No. 13, American Legion, has been appointed chairman of disaster relief by the executive board of the Maryland Department of the American Legion on the recommendation of Roy S. Pyle, of Havre de Grace, state commander.

Dr. W. O. McLane, Jr., of Frostburg, also has been named to the same committee which comprises ten members.

Kelly also has been appointed to the Maryland department graves registration committee, of which Amos Worthington, of Baltimore, is chairman. The local commander has served as chairman of the local graves registration committee from 1933 to 1941 and as Mountain District chairman of the committee for five years. He retired as chairman following his elevation to the post of commander.

Henry S. Winebrenner has been appointed by Kelly to take over the duties of chairman of the local graves registration committee.

Joseph Gonder, of Proctor Kildow Post No. 71, of Oakland, is the new chairman of the Maryland department, American Legion, foreign relations committee. Gonder is a past vice-commander of Mountain district, which comprises Allegany and Garrett counties .

Business Women Plan Meetings

Outing Scheduled Sept. 23; Dinner Meeting Fixed for October 7

An outing in Constitution park, Tuesday, September 23, will mark the first meeting of the Cumberland Business and Professional Women's Club since adjournment last June, it was announced yesterday by Mrs. G. Morgan Smith, president.

The affair is scheduled to start at 5:30 p. m., and will be in charge of a committee comprising Miss Bessie Baird, chairman, and the Misses Margaret Conner, Wella Cook and Sara Wright.

Mrs. Smith said that the first regular dinner meeting of the club will be held Tuesday, October 7, at 5:30 p. m. The meeting place will be determined later.

A meeting of the program committee and executive board is scheduled for Tuesday, September 30, at 7:15 p. m., in the Cumberland Free Public Library.

Officers of the Cumberland Business and Professional Women's Club and all local chairmen are expected to attend a state leadership conference to be held Saturday, September 27 in Baltimore.

Thousands See Aurora Borealis Stage Fine Show

News Office Swamped with Calls as Strange Lights Appear in Sky

With results almost approaching Orson Welles's havoc-spreading "Men from Mars" radio broadcast about three years ago, the Cumberland area, along with a large part of the nation, was treated last night to an unusual and spectacular display of the Aurora Borealis.

The heavenly show, with strange lights sweeping across the sky, led many defense-minded citizens to inquire of the News office and police headquarters if it was connected with army maneuvers, such as testing of a new searchlight or new night tactics by the air corps.

More alarmist-minded members of the populace saw it as a sign of the end of the world or a Nazi invasion. "It's a warning," or "Hitler's coming" were some of the remarks overheard.

Woman Is Skeptical

One woman, one of hundreds who called the News, after being told that it was the Aurora Borealis, or northern lights, was still a little skeptical.

"As wicked as the world is today, it might be something else," she insisted.

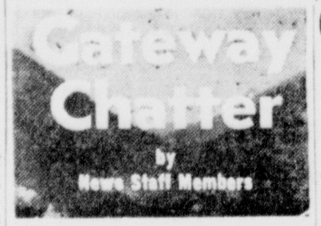

Police headquarters, as well as the News office, was swamped with calls, and the telephone company reported a sudden upsurge of calls between 7:50 and 8:20 p. m., an influx which nearly flooded the switchboards. Hundreds of persons called friends and relatives to tell them of the display as well as to seek information.

H. C. Wickard, general science teacher at Allegany high school, who viewed the phenomenon from the observatory at the school with Principal Ralph R. Webster, said that the display began about 6:30 p. m. Most Cumberlanders did not spot it, however, until an hour or more later.

Wickard, along with Thomas Lohr Richards, Cumberland attorney and National Labor Relations Act Is Vital to Defense Program, Kiwanis Club Members Are Told by Attorney

The News yesterday printed a letter from a reader complaining of dirt coming from the plant of the Peter Pan Cleaners. Of course, this is the opinion of the writer of the letter and in no way is to be taken as a statement by this newspaper that the facts mentioned in the letter are correct.

About seventy letters were sent to the Chamber of Commerce in response to its clean-up campaign. In printing them the News had no intention of singling out any particular plant.

In justification to Peter Pan Cleaners it may be stated that it has a small boiler with a smoke stack which complies fully with all municipal regulations. In addition, it is located between two railroads, between two large local industries and near another cleaning establishment and a large lumber yard.

The owners of Peter Pan Cleaners are as anxious to make Cumberland a clean city and to abate any smoke nuisance as are other citizens.

Here are some more of the letters received by the Chamber of commerce in the smoke elimination campaign.

"Who doesn't want to eliminate this awful smoke?" a Penn avenue resident writes. "It chokes our flowers, grass and shrubs. We spend all our time scrubbing and dusting inside and out. Our dispositions are soured. No time for reading or recreation of any kind. Mothers forbid the children getting dirty. Consequently the children are robbed of their normal right to play.

"We are not criticizing the mothers. After the children are dressed spotless, in one half hour they are too dirty to come in contact with anyone or the furniture.

"Let's do something and not take it out in talk or wishful thinking. Then our citizens would have the courage to pain and make our city beautiful.

"Also may we suggest something be done at once about the miserable mosquitoes? Believe it or not, some of us do like to stay at home of evenings and enjoy the porch, but under present conditions it's impossible. Thanks for listening."

"Permit me to congratulate you and bid you God speed in your efforts to annihilate the smoke nuisance in our fair city," a Gephart Drive resident writes. "To my mind, it is Cumberland's Number 1 annoyance, ranking only to the traffic issue and flood control problem.

"Nothing is more vital to the health of our community, and the welfare of its citizens, than the stamping out of this smoke pest.

"Furthermore, this hazard may be easily eliminated and is due only to the selfishness of a few companies who are not public spirited enough to control the belch of their waste.

"If you succeed in the elimination of smoke from Cumberland, you will have rendered an invaluable service to this community."

Cobey Says It Helps Insure "Maximum Efficiency in Production"

The National Labor Relations act, or Wagner act, is important to the national defense program because it helps insure "maximum efficiency in production," members of the Cumberland Kiwanis club were told yesterday.

The speaker was James A. Cobey, assistant regional attorney for the National Relations Board at Los Angeles, Calif., who rapped both capital and labor for looking chiefly to their self-interest during the defense emergency.

Speaking at the club's weekly meeting at the Fort Cumberland hotel, Cobey, a former resident of Frostburg, declared that the Wagner act "represents the minimum guarantee of a democratic government that labor's position at its council tables will not be undermined and that labor will be accorded a participation equivalent to its contributions."

Efficiency Is Required

"More concretely expressed," the speaker explained, "all-out national defense requires maximum efficiency in production Such efficiency cannot be obtained unless labor's minimum rights are recognized and protected."

Cobey did not give labor a clean bill of health, however, for its attitude toward the defense program.

"The major reason—in the eyes of some at least—why all is not well with the national defense picture today," he said, "is that both labor and capital have acted and are acting rather lige complete cynics about the whole program.

"Labor seems primarily interested in increasing the membership of its unions and getting its slice of profits, by way of higher wages, with the minimum of risk and all at the taxpayers' expense, while capital likewise seems chiefly intent upon making up for the alleged profit drought of the past decade—again with the minimum of risk and at the taxpayers' expense.

Sacrifice Is Necessary

"But the march of events, the wave of the future—call it what you will—may force, and perhaps for the preservation of the democratic way of life, must force, both industrial groups to substitute some degree of sacrifice for their present all-out in self-interest.

"Then if national unity is to be preserved, each must be called upon to sacrifice equally."

Turning at this point to the part that the National Labor Relations act might play, Cobey said labor's sacrifices might well be the "abandonment of resort to economic action," or strikes, in defense industries in those situations where the matters in controversy come within the jurisdiction of the National Labor Relations Board.

In return for this, he continued, the "reactionary element in American business might, for the first time, accept the process and procedure of collective bargaining in complete good faith."

The labor board itself, the speaker added, "can make its contribution through the streamlining and speeding up of its procedures and through obtaining the confidence of both groups, without which satisfactory adjustments cannot be had."

Record-Breaking Tax Bill Hits Low Wage Earners, Mel Fiske Declares

Editor Urges People To Request President To Veto Measure

The record-breaking tax bill passed this week by Congress and now awaiting President Roosevelt's signature was described in a radio address here last night as a measure "that provides relief for the rich at the expense of the poor."

Mel Fiske, editor of the Voice of Labor, CIO bi-weekly published here, urged "workers, farmers, professional people and small businessmen" to request the President to veto the bill.

Is Radio Address

Speaking over Radio Station WTBO, Fiske explained that the legislation requires single workers making $15 a week and married workers making $30 a week to pay a ten per cent income tax "for the first time in the history of the United States."

"The bill is nothing more than a victory for the National Association of Manufacturers, who for months have publicly lobbied for a lower income tax base," the speaker said. "It is a victory for the large corporations and millionaires who have escaped the grasp of the new tax bill, which raises their taxes by two per cent while increasing taxes on workers by six per cent."

CIO Opposes Bill

Opposition to the bill by the CIO and the CIO-affiliated Western Maryland Industrial Union Council "is not based on any desire to avoid a fair share of governmental costs," said Fiske, "but is directed at its wholly unfair and harsh treatment of the low income groups, as against its favored handling of wealthy persons and big corporations."

The CIO representative asserted thata the tax bill hits workers whose "low earnings are not enough to provide even a decent standard of living, and any amount paid out in taxes from these earnings will mean less food, less shelter, less clothing for millions. . . . In addition, these low wage earners and farmers will have to pay hundreds of millions of dollars in increased sale taxes. . . .

"But as compared to this heavy tax on low income groups, the bill leaves untaxed and provide many loopholes for huge profits and incomes on wealthy individuals and corporations

Points Out Loopholes

"The bill also gives a big advantage to the big profit corporations as against smaller business concerns. Under the loopholes provided for corporation profits, the wealthy du Pont corporation, for example, would be permitted to make as much as fifty five million dollars in clear profit annually before it would have to pay one cent in excess profits taxes. This is made possible under a provision which establishes a 'normal' profits base from the average profits made between 1936 and 1939 and requires the payment of surplus taxes only on earnings above the so-called 'normal' profits. Under these terms, big taxes until a profit of two hundred and ten million dollars is cleared in a year, while new and smaller firms will be taxed heavily.

"One of the fundamentals of a

Pilots Club Here Approves Plans To Incorporate

Wade L. Berg, Resident Agent, and Seven Directors Are Named

The Cumberland Pilots Club approved unanimously plans to incorporate at a meeting Wednesday evening at the Queen City Dairy Company offices, South Mechanic street.

Papers of incorporation were read by William H. Geppert, counsel of the club, and local pilot.

Wade L. Berg was elected as resident agent of the corporation and directors of the club are G. Bernard Miltenberger, Ellsworth V. Rosenmerkle, Harold R. Fletcher, Joseph Bedinger, Dr. Frank E. Stamp, Andrew Conner and A. H. Amick, Jr.

Business and objects to be carried on and promoted are to stimulate public interest in aviation, to conduct air shows, races, exhibitions and other forms of aerial and social entertainment, to promote social harmony among pilots, to encourage the discussion and consideration of aeronautical problems, to provide educational and recreational facilities for its members and to contribute in every way to the safety and advancement of flying in the vicinity of Cumberland.

Members decided to incorporate following the success of the club's recent air show at the Mexico Farms airport. Since the show here the club has received requests from other cities and towns to promote shows at other points. Sanford Jenkins, parachute jumper, who performed at the local show, has received several offers to appear in other cities and is asked to name his own price.

The main office of The Cumberland Pilots Club is located at 505 Linden street.

Cooking School Ends Here Today

Final Session Will Feature Awarding of Grand Prizes

The final session of the Times-News Cooking School will convene this morning at 9 o'clock at the Strand theater.

Miss Loreen Jacobson who has been conducting the school for the past three days will again demonstrate the preparation of many tasty dishes. The grand prizes which are a yearly feature of the school will be awarded in addition to the regular baskets of groceries and tasty foods prepared at the school by Miss Jacobson.

A new high was reached in attendance at the theater yesterday with many out-of-town guests present.

Visitor Praises School

Among the out-of-town visitors to the local Cooking School yesterday was Miss Flora G. Dowler, home service supervisor for the Cumberland and Allegheny Gas Co., with headquarters in Pittsburgh. Miss Dowler not only praised Miss Jacobson and her assistant, Miss Helen Bitterman, for their work in conducting the school, and the smooth-functioning work of the newspaper staff back of it, but she was especially impressed by the high calibre of the audience.

"One of the most intelligent and good-looking audiences I have ever seen at a cooking school," she commented.

Among the dishes prepared and demonstrated by Miss Jacobson today were veal shoulder roast, lamb shoulder, glazed meat loaf, barbecued pork chops, brisket with vegetables, broiled lamb and bacon and noodles.

17 Gifts Presented

Ten baskets of groceries and six dishes of food were given to Mrs. E. H. Layman, 49 North Mechanic street; Hazel Green, La Vale; Emily Mansbury, Arch street; Annette Hansel, 407 Beall street; Mrs. Joseph J. Coleman, 208 Fayette street; Mrs. Harry T. Johnston, 19 Water street; Mrs. Henry Nichols, 636 Shriver avenue; Millicent Hardman, 408 Columbia street; Mrs. Frank Moss, 56 Boone street; Mrs. G. C. Connelly, La Vale; Emma Matlick, 463 Goethe street; Mrs. H. L. Elliott, 9 North Waverly Terrace; Mrs. W. C. Reighard, 742 Baker street; Mrs. V. O. Dolly, Flintstone; Mrs. George Hartung, 524 Columbia avenue, and Miss Betty Robinette, 609 Maryland avenue. A case of Rinso was awarded to Mrs. F. A. Ruppert, 509 Frederick street.

Cereus Blooms Here The Second Time

Flowering for the second time in a season, a night blooming cereus owned by Mr. and Mrs. John E. Marean, 825 Shriver avenue, burst into bloom Wednesday evening.

The plant first bloomed about a month ago, and has developed a number of buds, but none opened until Wednesday, when a flower measuring four inches appeared.

The second blooming is said to be unusual.

BEDFORD STREET WATER LINE LETS LOOSE WITH GEYSER 100 FEET HIGH

Bedford street took on the appearance of Yellowstone park yesterday afternoon when a six-inch main let loose and sent a geyser of water 100 feet into the air for a period of fifteen minutes before city water department workers brought things under control.

Simon K. Carroll, city plumber, said that a main was being renewed in front of 157 Bedford street when the stream of water shot skyward blowing out fittings and scattering mud and gravel in all directions.

The sudden burst of water sent city workers to a point near Bedford and Centre streets where the supply was shut off until repairs were completed. A nearby fire plug was opened to cut down the force of the water which slightly damaged window blinds and curtains of nearby houses.

"The city is going to pay for the damage caused to my window blinds," remarked one of the irate residents.

Bedford street consumers were without water for a short period during the time repairs were being made to the line.

Baltimore Story Listed Among New Books at Library

Mrs. Lloyd Lowndes III, Is Author of "Ghosts That Still Walk"

A rousing history of the Port of Baltimore, a story of Nazi carpet baggers on the banks of the Seine and a story of the country where the Big Sandy flows are among the interesting new books to be found on the shelves of the Cumberland Free Public Library, according to Miss Mary G. Walsh, librarian.

"Baltimore on the Chesapeake" is an important addition to the library's Maryland books. It is the third in a series of works dealing with American seaports. The author is the well known editor of the Baltimore Sun, Hamilton Owens, who knows and loves his subject.

"France on Berlin Time," by Thomas Kernan, is an eye witness account of the real conquest of France written by an American publisher of the Paris "Vogue."

Story of "Big Sandy"

"Big Sandy," by Jean Thomas, is a story of the country where the Big Sandy flows. This region along the boundary between Kentucky and West Virginia maintained for almost two centuries its old manners and customs, its eighteenth century forms of speech, folk arts and handicrafts, and its suspicion of strangers. Jean Thomas tells the story of a passing culture. It's all here from Hatfield feuds to the old time ballads.

Also listed among the new books is "Reveille in Washington, 1860-1865," by Margaret Leach. This is the story of our national capital during its greatest ordeal. It is the story of men and women of crowded streets and hotel offices, of parade grounds and theaters and camps, and ball rooms and prisons. The book describes the life in the White House and the story of the Lincolns. Margaret Leach is the wife of Ralph Pulitzer. She is the author of several novels.

"My Scottish Husband," by Lady Neish, is a charming volume reminiscent of "Elizabeth and Her German Garden." It is full of Scottish humor and Scottish common sense—a rewarding book.

"West Virginia Guide," the latest American guide, compiled by the Writers' Project, is of particular interest to Maryland readers. It is an interesting and well illustrated volume.

Mrs. Lowndes Writes Book

"Ghosts That Still Walk," by Marion Smith Lowndes, is written for young people, but will be enjoyed by the many readers of all ages who are interested in the psychic and mysterious. The famous ghosts of America walk these pages in such realistic phrase that the reader begins to wonder. The author is in private life Mrs. Lloyd Lowndes III and has often visited Cumberland.

Other noteworthy additions include:

"Famous American Landmarks," by Lorinda Munson Bryant.

"When the Sorghum was High," by John J. Considine.

"Neighbors to the South," by Delia Goetz.

"Start 'Em Sailing," by R. C. Aymar.

Editorial in Times Receives Recognition From Legion Group

The Cumberland Evening Times has received first honorable mention for an editorial published June 24 under the title "The Legion as Leader."

According to a board of judges representing the Legion it was the best Legion editorial appearing in any Maryland newspaper during the past year.

One editorial from each state was selected for final consideration for the Stephen F. Chadwick editorial appreciation trophy for the award of which competition is held annually.

No individual award was made this year, as those editorials chosen as first in each state were, according to the committee's decision of equal merit.

Judge Sloan Will Hand Down Ruling In Bridge Case

Railroad Seeks Injunction against Re-opening Flat Rock Span

Chief Judge D. Lindley Sloan said yesterday that he will hand down a decision within the next few days on the petition of the Cumberland and Pennsylvania Railroad for an injunction to prevent the board of county commissioners from reopening to vehicular traffic the Flat Rock bridge across George's creek near Barton.

The railroad, represented by William A. Gunter, attorney, contends an act passed by the 1941 legislature directing the commissioners to open the bridge is unconstitutional because it is a law which impairs the obligation of contracts and deprives the company of its property without due process of law. The statute is in conflict with both the United States constitution and that of Maryland, the railroad charges.

Three-Way Agreement

In October, 1938, a three-way agreement was entered into by the state roads commission, the board of county commissioners and the railroad providing for the abandonment of the use of the bridge and four railroad grade crossings—two public and two private. This action was to follow construction of a new crossing connecting the old state highway on the west side of the C. & P. tracks and the new highway on the east side.

The agreement, which was carried out several months later at considerable expense to the railroad, was designed chiefly to eliminate the grade crossings, which were described as dangerous.

Work on the project was completed in June, 1939, and the bridge and four crossings were closed to automobile traffic. Cost to the railroad was said to be $1,500, with the WPA furnishing $14,000.

Residents of the community complained to the legislature that closing of the bridge inconvenienced them, and the reopening of the bridge was ordered in a special act. The citizens said they were forced to make a two-mile trip in order to reach the other side of Georges creek, a distance of less than 150 feet by way of the old bridge.

Two Witnesses Heard

Only two witnesses testified at the hearing, most of the proceedings being devoted to arguments concerning the law.

Edward H. Nunn, of Baltimore, construction engineer for the state roads commission, said that safety was promoted by the closing of the four railway crossings, all of which were described as situated at points where vision range was limited.

Another witness was Father Scarpati, of Westernport, who told of the inconvenience worked by the closing of the bridge. Several residents of the community were also on hand to testify concerning this point, but Judge Sloan ruled such testimony was irrelevant.

The legislature decided that the bridge's closing was an inconvenience and acted accordingly, the jurist said, but the court is interested only in the legality of the act.

The county commissioners were represented by their attorney, Walter C. Capper, and Estel C. Kelley, attorney, was granted permission to intervene as "amicus curiae," or friend of the court, representing interests of the citizens affected by the closing of the span.

Local Boy Scout Commissioner Adds Beck to His Staff

Latter Assigned to Three Troops Here; Lalor Will Attend Meeting

Kenneth Beck, of 812 Edgewood drive, former local scoutmaster, has been appointed to the commissioners' staff of Cumberland Council, Boy Scouts of America, it was announced yesterday at scout headquarters.

Beck served as local assistant scoutmaster and later as scoutmaster from 1927 to 1932, was a member of the Cumberland district activities committee in recent years, and last year he was a member of the Hobnob committee of Potomac Council.

James S. Thayer is district commissioner and his assistants in addition to Beck are Henry Shriver III, Vernon Adams and Edgar T. Duke.

Beck will assist in the supervision of Cumberland scout troops No. 1, of St. Luke's Lutheran church; No. 4, of Centre Street Methodist church and No. 5, of the Junior Order of United American Mechanics.

Ray C. Lalor, scout executive of Potomac Council, will leave Sunday for Pittsburgh to attend a three-day meeting of scout executives of region number three, which is scheduled to open next Monday in the Webster Hall hotel.

Swimming classes for boy scouts will be inaugurated Monday, September 22, in the Central Y.M.C.A. pool under the supervision of Lloyd Stevens, scout leader. The class will have use of the pool from 5:45 to 6:45 p. m.
